Demy 8vo, cloth, 7s. 6d.

ON THE RESTORATION OF HEALTH. By DR. THOMAS INMAN, Physician to the Royal Infirmary, Liverpool, &c.

"It would be unfair to deny that Dr. Inman often makes some pithy remarks, and that though as a general rule he is needlessly aggressive and uncharitable to his brother practitioners, his criticisms are occasionally as just as they are vigorous. His remarks on myalgia are well worthy of attention. . . . . Some of his remarks on pathology and treatment are worthy of attention as coming from an experienced physician of a sceptical and inquiring turn of mind."—Edin. Med. Jour., Feb. 1871.

Demy 8vo, 5s.

ON THE PRESERVATION OF HEALTH. Second Edition.

With 102 Illustrations. 8vo, cloth, 21s.

"It is beautifully printed and profusely illustrated, in a way which cannot fail to be most useful to students. The matter of the volume is admirably arranged, better than any book of the kind which I have seen. . . . They have perfected, if they did not originate, a method of electro-therapy which they call 'general faradisation,' and which they put forward as deserving of careful attention."—Dr. T. I. Preliminary.
II. Registration of Medical Men.
III. The Licensing and Qualifying Bodies.
IV. Registration of Chemists and Druggists.
V. Offices held by Medical Men.
VI. Rights and Privileges of Medical Men.
VII. Duties and Liabilities of Medical Men.
VIII. Partners, Apprentices, and Assistants.

APPENDIX.—Medical Etiquette, by Alfred Carpenter, M.D.

"Mr. Glenn has executed a difficult task in a very satisfactory manner, and has conferred a great obligation upon the profession. . . . . We think Mr. Glenn's treatise remarkably accurate and complete, and deserving of high commendation. . . . . The book, taken altogether, is eminently clear and practical, and is calculated to be of great utility."—Lancet.

"Mr. Glenn has done his work thoroughly and well. . . . . It appears to us that Mr. Glenn has ably and diligently carried out a very useful and valuable intention."—Medical Times and Gazette.

"To medical men and to lawyers we can commend this volume as a clear exposition of existing law."—Law Times.

"A carefully prepared compilation of the whole law relating to doctors. Mr. Glenn has evidently examined the authorities with care."—Law Journal.

"Mr. Glenn appears to have done his work very well. To medical practitioners the work will be invaluable. It might have been entitled 'Every Medical Man his own Lawyer,' so comprehensive is its scope."—Solicitors' Journal.

"Of distinct importance to the medical world. Mr. Glenn's volume is very plain and clear."—Daily Telegraph.

"To the young practitioner Mr. Glenn's clearly written manual may be of real service."—The Graphic.

"Digested and arranged with marked ability. We cannot part from Mr. Glenn's work without bearing our testimony to the ability which he has brought to the elucidation of a most difficult branch of the law, and to the untiring zeal and accuracy with which he has accomplished his task."—Public Opinion.

LUNACY:

ITS PAST AND ITS PRESENT.

By GARDINER HILL,

RESIDENT PHYSICIAN, EARL'S COURT HOUSE, OLD BROMPTON.

"We think it but fair that the evidence furnished by Dr. Gardiner Hill should be adduced, and we hold it to be conclusive. Truth compels us to say that the evidence of his claims to the great honour of being the first to do away with mechanical methods of restraint is indisputable. Thus, in the words of Dr. Conolly, the non-restraint system became established at Lincoln. To Dr. Gardiner Hill this great merit was due; to his lectures, indeed, on lunatic asylums, delivered at the Mechanics' Institution, at Lincoln, in 1838, Dr. Conolly owed the happy inspiration which led him to embrace the new doctrine."—Edinburgh Review.

"Honour to whom honour is due; and to our mind Dr. Hill satisfactorily proves his claim to the award."—Examiner.

"The idea of total abolition of absolute non-restraint is due to Mr. Hill. This is to be found stated plainly in whatever Dr. Conolly wrote, and was repeated whenever he spoke on the subject. It ought to be remembered that total abolition is quite different in principle from mild restraint. . . . In totally abolishing restraint, even in its mildest form, Mr. Gardiner Hill introduced a totally different principle of treatment. . . . We regard the practice of the "non-restraint" system, as published by Mr. Hill in 1839, and subsequently so eloquently enforced for a long series of years in the practice and writings of Dr. Conolly, as one of the greatest achievements of modern times, fraught with untold blessings to thousands, and rendering possible the scientific treatment by physicians of all forms of mental derangement."—British and Foreign Medico-Chirurgical Review, 1870.

"He (Mr. Hill) demonstrated that mechanical restraint was unnecessary in the treatment of even the acute and dangerous forms of insanity, and may therefore fairly claim to have been the first who altogether abolished restraint to the person in the management of the insane."—Glasgow Medical Journal.

PREFACE.

We have to call attention to several alterations and additions which will be found in the present volume.

1. The MEDICAL DIRECTORY FOR LONDON has been extended for the purpose of including all Practitioners resident within the "London Postal Districts."

2. The LIST OF LICENTIATES IN DENTAL SURGERY (page 1067) has been rendered more useful by the addition of the qualifications, appointments, published works, &c. &c., of those who possess the licence.

3. The LIST OF PRACTITIONERS RESIDENT ABROAD (page 1022) has been very largely augmented, and now includes the names, addresses, and qualifications of many hundreds of Medical Men, of whom until recently we could obtain no information. Arrangements have been entered into which will enable us to make this Section of the Medical Directory as valuable and useful as the other portions of the work. Medical Men in this Country who are asked to recommend some English practitioner to patients about to emigrate, will be thankful for the particulars given in this list. The rule which is observed in the other Sections of the "Directory" has necessarily been followed in this, viz.; "that only Practitioners possessing British qualifications, and such as are registerable, shall be inserted."

4. A valuable ABSTRACT OF THE LAWS AFFECTING MEDICAL MEN has been written specially for the MEDICAL DIRECTORY, by Mr. R. G. GLENN, Barrister at Law (page xxii). It will be found to contain information necessary to Members of the Profession in their daily practice, and may be referred to with confidence. It also furnishes particulars respecting the nature of the various appointments and offices held by Medical Men.

5. A list of PROVINCIAL MEDICAL OFFICERS OF HEALTH will be found at page 724.

6. An increase in the number of Foreign Degrees, obtained without residence, was observed in the returns for the MEDICAL DIRECTORY of last year, but we did not consider it necessary at that time to call special attention to the fact. This year, however, the increase was so considerable, that we deemed it a positive duty to the Profession to discountenance a practice which must, sooner or later, exercise a baneful influence. In September last, we announced in all the Medical Journals that "No qualifications will be inserted in the forthcoming Edition of the Medical Directory which cannot be registered under the Medical Act. Actual registration is not a condition of insertion, but the qualifications must be such as the Registrars would receive." It was extremely gratifying to find the course we had decided upon thoroughly approved by those who represent medical opinion. The correspondence which our "notice" elicited, and the concurrent exposure of some of the so-called Universities which granted Degrees, have confirmed the wisdom of the step. We deeply regret that the impartial application of the rule necessitated the omission of the Foreign Degrees held by some honoured and esteemed members of the Profession. All those gentlemen who sought and obtained the Degrees, knew when doing so, that they had no legal value in this country,—they cannot therefore justly complain if the general interests of the profession to which they belong require that such Degrees be no longer recognised. We have ground for stating that the MEDICAL DIRECTORY was being utilized by those who negotiate Foreign Degrees, and but for the expectation that the so-called qualifications would be published therein, few practitioners would have been tempted to pay the fees required for the useless documents. For many years past the Public, as well as the Profession, have regarded the Medical Directory as the only reliable source of information on matters pertaining to the status of medical men, and we felt it to be due to them, as well as ourselves, to discourage a system fraught with mischief. Most gladly would we have retained those foreign qualifications which were honourably obtained, but the great difficulty we experienced in endeavouring to learn the nature of the examinations which qualify for the Degrees, and the necessity for acting impartially, forced us to adhere strictly to the rule laid down. In all probability, the Medical Council will be obliged to take up the subject, and recognise as eligible for registration the Degrees obtained at the best of the Foreign Universities. Until this is done, we must decline to insert Foreign Degrees, and we believe that in so doing, we are regarding the best interests of the Profession.

college, practising as a physician in the United Kingdom before October 1st, 1858, who produces certificates, to the satisfaction of the Council, of his having taken such degree after regular examination, or who satisfies the Council that there is sufficient reason for admitting him to be registered. The above-mentioned colleges and other bodies may transmit from time to time, to the registrar of the Branch Council for England, Scotland, or Ireland, lists, certified under their respective seals, of the several persons who, in respect of qualifications granted by such colleges and bodies respectively, are, for the time being, entitled to be registered, stating the respective qualifications, and places of residence of such persons; and thereupon, and upon payment of the proper fee, such registrar will enter in the register the persons mentioned in such lists, with their qualifications and places of residence, without other application in relation thereto. Persons who were actually practising medicine in England before August 1st, 1815, are entitled to be registered upon payment of a fee of 2*l.*, and upon producing to the registrar of the Branch Council for England, Scotland, or Ireland, or upon transmitting to him by post, together with information of name and address, the following declaration duly signed:—To the Registrar of the Medical Council.—I, , residing at , in the county of , hereby declare that I was practising as a medical practitioner, at , in the county of , before the first day of August, 1815. (Signed.) [Name.] Dated this day of , 18 . Persons who, on or before October 1st, 1858, held appointments as surgeons or assistant-surgeons in the Army, Navy, or Militia, or in the service of the East India Company, or who were acting, on or before that date, as surgeons in the public service, or in the service of any charitable institution, are entitled to be registered on the production of evidence, satisfactory to the Branch Council to which application may be made, that there is sufficient ground for directing such registration to be made. Persons who were practising medicine or surgery within the United Kingdom, on foreign or colonial diplomas or degrees, before 2nd August, 1858, are entitled to be registered, if they obtained such diplomas or degrees after regular examination at the seat of the university or college which granted the same. Any registered person who obtains any higher degree, or any of the qualifications mentioned above, other than the qualification in respect of which he was registered, is entitled to have such higher degree or additional qualification inserted in the register, in substitution of, or in addition to the qualification previously registered, on payment of a fee of 5*s*. Any person claiming to be entitled to be registered on account of any qualification, or to be entitled to have any additional qualification added to his name, after the first registration, is bound to satisfy the registrar, by proper evidence, that he is entitled to such qualification. Any appeal from the decision of the registrar may be decided by the General Council, or by the Council for England, Scotland, or Ireland (as the case may be); and any entry which may be proved, to the satisfaction of such General Council, or Branch Council, to have been fraudulently or incorrectly made, may be erased from the register, by order in writing of such General Council, or Branch Council. When the registrar of a Branch Council inserts in, and afterwards, by order of such Branch Council, and without notice to the party registered, strikes out of the register the description of a qualification which the evidence produced to the registrar by the claimant did not show that he had obtained, the Court will not, by Mandamus, compel the registrar to re-insert such description. Any person wilfully procuring, or attempting to procure himself to be registered, by making or producing, or causing to be made or produced, any false or fraudulent representation or declaration, either verbally or in writing, and any person aiding and assisting him therein, is liable, on conviction, to be sentenced to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding twelve months.

Registration of Colonial Practitioners.—Every colonial legislature has full power, from time to time, to make laws for the purpose of enforcing the registration, within its jurisdiction, of medical practitioners, including persons who have been registered under the "Medical Act;" but any person who has been duly registered under that Act is entitled to be registered in any colony, upon payment of the fees (if any) required for such registration, and upon proof, in such manner as the colonial legislature may direct, of his registration under the said Act. This does not apply to the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man.

Powers of the General Council over the Licensing and Qualifying Bodies.—The several colleges and bodies authorized to grant the qualifications which entitle the holders thereof to be registered, are bound, from time to time, when required by the General Council, to furnish such Council with such information as they may require, as to the courses of study and examinations to be gone through to obtain the respective qualifications, and the ages at which such courses of study and examination are required to be gone through, and such qualifications are conferred, and, generally, as to the requisites for obtaining such qualifications. Any member or members of the General Council, or any person or persons deputed for the purpose by such Council, or by any Branch Council, may attend and be present at any such examinations. Whenever it may appear to the General Council that the course of study and examinations to be gone through, in order to obtain any such qualification from any such college or body, are not such as to secure the possession by persons obtaining such qualification of the requisite knowledge and skill for the efficient practice of their profession, the General Council may represent the same to the Privy Council. The Privy Council may, upon any such representation, if it see fit, order that any qualification granted by such college or body, after such time as may be mentioned in the order, shall not confer any right to be registered. Her Majesty may, however, with the advice of her Privy Council, when it is made to appear to her, upon further representation from the General Council, or otherwise, that such college or body has made effectual provision, to the satisfaction of the General Council, for the improvement of such course of study or examinations, or the mode of conducting such examinations, revoke any such order. After the time mentioned in any such Order in Council, no person is entitled to be registered in respect of any such qualification, as in such order mentioned, granted by the college or body to which such order relates, after the time therein mentioned; and the revocation of any such order does not entitle any person to be registered in respect of any qualification granted before such revocation. Whenever it may appear to the General Council that an attempt has been made by any body entitled to grant qualifications to impose upon any candidate offering himself for examination an obligation to adopt, or refrain from adopting, the practice of any particular theory of medicine or surgery, as a test or condition of admitting him to examination, or of granting a certificate, the General Council may represent the same to the Privy Council. The Privy Council may, upon any such representation, issue an injunction to such body so acting, directing them to desist from such practice, and, in the event of their not complying therewith, order that such body shall cease to have the power of conferring any right to be registered, so long as they shall continue such practice. All the above-mentioned powers of the Privy Council may be exercised by any three or more of the Lords and others of the Privy Council, the Vice-President of the Committee of the Privy Council on Education being one of them; and all the above-mentioned orders and acts of the Privy Council are deemed sufficiently made and signified by a written or printed document, signed by one of the clerks of the Privy Council, or such officer as may be appointed by the Privy Council in such behalf; and all orders and acts made or signified by any written or printed document purporting to be so signed, are deemed to have been duly made, issued, and done by the Privy Council; and every such document is evidence in all courts, and before all justices and others, without proof of the authority or signature of such clerk, or other officer, or other proof whatsoever, until it is shown that such document was not duly signed by the authority of the Privy Council.

UNREGISTERED AND UNQUALIFIED PRACTITIONERS.

Registration is not compulsory upon medical men, nor can any penalties be inflicted upon an unregistered person, who, having obtained a qualification in medicine or surgery, practises according to such qualification. No unregistered person, however, can recover any charge, in any court of law, for any medical or surgical advice or attendance, or for the performance of any operation, or for any medicine which he has both prescribed and supplied, whether he be qualified or unqualified. Neither may any unregistered person hold any appointment either as a physician, surgeon, or other medical officer, either in the military or naval service, or in emigrant or other vessels, or in any hospital, infirmary, dispensary, or lying-in hospital not supported wholly by voluntary contributions, or in any lunatic asylum, gaol, house of correction, house of industry, parochial union, workhouse, or poor-house, parish, union, or other public establishment, body, or institution, or to any friendly or other society for affording mutual relief in sickness, infirmity, or old age, or as a medical officer of health. Neither is any certificate required by any Act from any medical practitioner valid, if signed by an unregistered person. There is nothing, therefore, to prevent a qualified but unregistered person from keeping an open surgery and doing a ready-money business. An unqualified person who practises medicine or surgery is, of course, debarred from recovering any fees or charges, and may, moreover, be proceeded against for penalties by any of the medical or surgical corporate bodies whose jurisdiction he may infringe, without having obtained the necessary diploma or licence. These rights have, however, rarely been exercised of late years, except by the Society of Apothecaries, which still frequently sues for penalties against persons practising without its licence. The practice of an apothecary may now be said to consist in attending and advising patients afflicted with diseases requiring medical (as distinguished from surgical) treatment, and prescribing, compounding, and supplying medicines for their cure or relief. The class of cases which it is the province of the apothecary to treat includes most of the diseases by which the human frame is affected; for instance, diseases of the brain, the lungs, the heart, the stomach, the liver, and the bowels, when the disorder is unattended by any external wound, sore, or tumour, and when medical treatment, unaided by any manual operation, is called for. A penalty of 20*l.* may be inflicted, for every such offence, upon any person acting or practising as an apothecary in England or Wales, without the licence of the Society, and a penalty of 5*l.*, for every such offence, upon any person acting as assistant to an apothecary to compound and dispense medicines, without having obtained the certificate of the Society. The Society can, therefore, afford no protection against practice by bone-setters, and that class of persons, but it can supply an efficient safeguard against irregular practice by chemists and druggists, for it has been held that a chemist who not only sells but also applies and administers medicines, in the ordinary course of attending patients, practises as an apothecary, and is not exempt from the penalty. Any person who wilfully and falsely pretends to be, or takes or uses the name or title of a physician, doctor of medicine, licentiate in medicine and surgery, bachelor of medicine, surgeon, general practitioner, or apothecary, or any name, title, addition, or description implying that he is a registered person, or that he is recognised by law as a physician, a surgeon, a licentiate in medicine and surgery, or a practitioner in medicine, or an apothecary, may, upon a summary conviction for such offence, be fined a sum not exceeding 20*l.* Convictions, in suits to recover this penalty, are not, however, easily obtained, as there must be unequivocal evidence that the party wilfully and falsely pretended. It is not enough, for instance, to prove that he is called a surgeon by persons whom he has attended professionally, in the absence of evidence to show that he has done so on his own account and for his own profit.

UNPROFESSIONAL CONDUCT.

It is provided by the Medical Act, that "if any registered medical practitioner shall be convicted in England or Ireland of any felony or misdemeanor, or in Scotland of any crime or offence, or shall, after due inquiry, be judged by the General Council to have been guilty of infamous conduct in any professional respect, the General Council may, if they see fit, direct the registrar to erase the name of such medical practitioner from the register." This applies to conduct of which the practitioner was guilty before as well as after registration. The General Council are the sole judges of whether a practitioner has been guilty of conduct infamous in a professional respect. They are bound to allow the accused person an opportunity of being heard in his defence, and it is their custom to allow him to appear by attorney, but not by counsel. The Medical Act further provides, that if any of the recognised colleges or medical or surgical bodies at any time exercise any power they possess by law of striking off from the list of such college or body the name of any one of their members, such college or body shall signify to the General Council the name of the member so struck off; and that the General Council may, if they see fit, direct the registrar to erase forthwith from the register the qualification derived from such college or body, in respect of which such member was registered, and that the registrar shall note the same therein. The name of no person may, however, be removed from the register on the ground of his having adopted any theory of medicine or surgery. Any application for the removal of a name from the register is investigated, in the first instance, by the Branch Council of that part of the kingdom in which the person whose name is proposed to be removed resides, and a statement of the case, and of the evidence in support of it, is then sent up by such Branch Council to the registrar of the General Council. The registrar, if so directed, then summons the person against whom the proceedings have been instituted to attend the General Council. When the Council remove the name of any person from the register, they send due intimation thereof to the various recognised colleges and medical and surgical bodies, accompanied by a recommendation that such person shall not be admitted to examination for any new qualification without the consent of the General Council.

LIABILITY FOR NEGLIGENCE AND MALAPRAXIS.

Every medical practitioner who, by a culpable want of attention and care, or by the absence of a competent degree of skill and knowledge, causes injury to a patient, is liable to a civil action for damages, even where the patient neither employed nor was to pay him, unless such injury be the immediate result of intervening negligence on the part of the patient himself, or unless such patient has, by his own carelessness, directly conduced to such injury. A surgeon does not undertake that he will perform a cure, nor does he undertake to use the highest possible degree of skill; but he undertakes to bring a fair, reasonable, and competent degree of skill; and in such an action the question is, whether the injury must be referred to the want of a proper degree of skill and care in the defendant or not. A medical man who is guilty of gross negligence, or evinces a gross want of knowledge of his profession, is criminally responsible for the consequences, but he is not liable to a criminal investigation for every slip. It must be a substantial thing. The distinction between actionable and criminal negligence cannot be defined, except so far as to say that to constitute the latter there must be such a degree of complete negligence as the law means by the word "felonious."

INOCULATION WITH THE SMALL-POX.

Inoculating with the small-pox is now a criminal offence, and any person producing or attempting to produce, in any person, by inoculation with variolous matter, or by wilful exposure to variolous matter, or to any matter, article, or thing impregnated with variolous matter, or wilfully, by any other means whatsoever, producing the disease of small-pox in any person, may be proceeded against summarily, and is liable, upon conviction, to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding one month.

REGISTRATION OF BIRTHS AND DEATHS.

A medical man is not bound to supply any information to the registrar as to the death of a patient dying in England whom he has attended during his last illness, unless specially requested so to do by the registrar within eight days after such death; but he must, when so requested, supply the desired information, or he will be liable to be indicted for a misdemeanor. A medical man is likely, under certain circumstances, to be requested, but cannot be compelled, to give information to the registrar as to the name, sex, &c., of a child at whose birth he was present. A medical man attending during the last illness and until the death of any person in Scotland must, under a penalty of 40*s.*, within seven days after such death, transmit to the registrar a certificate of such death in a particular form, copies of which are supplied to him by the registrar.

DUTY OF MEDICAL MEN AS WITNESSES.*

The following are the chief provisions of the Medical Witnesses' Acts, by which the Coroner is empowered to issue his order for the attendance of medical practitioners at inquests. Whenever upon the holding of any Coroner's Inquest it appears that the deceased person was attended at his death, or during his last illness, by any legally qualified medical practitioner, the Coroner may issue his order for the attendance of such practitioner as a witness; and if such person was not so attended, then the order may issue for the attendance of any legally qualified practitioner in actual practice in or near the place where the death happened. The majority of jurymen at such an inquest may also call for the evidence of such other medical witnesses as they may desire. The Coroner may also direct the performance of a post-mortem examination, with or without an analysis of the contents of the stomach or intestines. When the Coroner's order for the attendance of a medical practitioner at an Inquest has been personally served upon such practitioner, or where any such order has been received by such practitioner in sufficient time for him to have obeyed such order, or where any such order has been served at his residence; and, in every case, where he has not obeyed such order, he is liable to a penalty of 5*l.* for such neglect or disobedience, which may be enforced by distress. The Coroner is bound to issue his summons according to a prescribed form, and any other description of order would be invalid, and no penalty could be inflicted on a medical man disobeying an order not drawn up according to the statutory form. The following is the Form of Order:—"Coroner's Inquest at ——, upon the body of ——. By virtue of this my order, as Coroner for ——, you are required to appear before me and the jury at ——, on the —— day of ——, at —— of the clock, to give evidence touching the cause of death of —— [and make, or assist in making, a post-mortem examination of the body, with (without) an analysis], and report thereon at the said Inquest. (Signed) A. B., Coroner. To ——. Surgeon [or M.D.]." A medical man should remember that in giving evidence before a Coroner, he is, in all cases likely to end in a committal of the accused person, virtually delivering it before a judge of assize; and this fact alone, if not a respect for the Court, should induce him to give the evidence guardedly, and with a due consideration to the serious results to which it may ultimately lead. A hasty opinion may involve the accused in a charge of manslaughter, and, though it may lead to no worse result, may be the means of causing the person charged to be imprisoned for some months previously to the trial. An opinion as to the cause of death should not be given without making an inspection of the body. No man is compellable to give an opinion upon insufficient data, and if by the institution of a judicial inquiry there are grounds for believing that a death has not been natural, no medical opinion of the cause should be given in the absence of an inspection. Such an opinion must always be conjectural, and may involve the medical man in an unpleasant responsibility. A medical witness will do well to remember also, that copies of his report and depositions, either before a Coroner or Magistrate, are usually placed in the hands of counsel, as well as of the Court, and that his evidence, as it is given at the trial, is compared word for word with that which has already been put on record. In drawing up medical reports for Inquests, or for other legal purposes, care should be taken to avoid exaggerated language and the too free use of technical terms, and to keep facts distinct from comments. The former may be useful as evidence, the latter are inadmissible. As a rule, nothing should be entered in a report which is not connected with the subject of inquiry, and which has not actually fallen under the observation of the reporter. The introduction of hearsay statements should be carefully avoided. In a medical report of an analysis in a case of suspected poisoning, it is not necessary that all the details of the analysis should be entered. A general statement of the results, to the effect that certain tests and processes have been used, will be sufficient. A medical man who neglects this rule, simply furnishes materials for a cross-examination to "medical counsel" acting only in the interests of a prisoner. A medical man is not bound to attend as witness at a trial, except upon a subpœna. The subpœna should be served a reasonable time before trial, to enable him to put his affairs in such order that his attendance on the Court may be as little detrimental as possible to his interests. His reasonable expenses should be tendered to him at the time when he is served with the subpœna, in civil cases, or at least a reasonable time before the trial, and even though he actually appear, he cannot be attacked for declining to give evidence, unless these charges be paid or tendered, but the objection that his expenses have not been paid must be raised before he has been sworn. In criminal cases, no tender of fees is necessary, except in the case of witnesses living in one distinct part of the United Kingdom being required to attend subpœnas directing their attendance in another, who are not liable to punishment for disobedience of the process, unless, at the time of service, a reasonable and sufficient sum of money to defray their expenses in coming, attending, and returning have been tendered to them. In all cases in which separate subpœnas are served fixing trials for the same time, the civil should give way to the criminal case. If the subpœnas are for two civil or two criminal cases, the course of a witness should be to attend to that in which the subpœna was first served upon him. No member of the medical profession should be without some knowledge of the science of medical jurisprudence. Few medical men who have been long engaged in the practice of the profession have not found themselves occasionally placed in situations of difficulty from the accidental occurrence of cases demanding medico-legal investigation. A medical practitioner who thinks himself secure in the most retired corner of the kingdom, is liable to find himself suddenly summoned as a witness on a trial, to answer questions which perhaps during a long period of practice he has been led to regard as trifling and unimportant. Under the circumstances, if he be destitute of medico-legal knowledge, it is scarcely possible that he can avoid exposing his deficiencies, and thus a guilty man may escape punishment or an innocent man be condemned, whilst his own reputation may be seriously injured; for it is certain that his qualifications as a physician, surgeon, or general practitioner, however great, will not shield him from general reprobation. The first duty of a medical jurist is to cultivate a faculty of minute observation of medical and moral circumstances. This, when combined with a general knowledge of what the law requires as evidence, will enable him to meet in a satisfactory manner all the scientific questions that may be necessary for the elucidation of a case. A medical man, when he sees a dead body, should notice everything. The condition and position of the body of a person dead from wounds, the position of a weapon, and the state of the dress and weapon, as well as the form and direction of the wound itself, should be marked with accuracy. It should not be left to policemen to say whether there were any marks of blood on the dress or on the hands of the deceased, or on the furniture in the room. With reference to the body, observation should be made at the time of the whether any part of it is cold or warm, and whether the limbs are cold and rigid, or cold and flaccid. As a matter of practice, a medical man will find it extremely convenient, in any case with regard to which he may be likely to be called upon to give evidence in the future, to draw up a report or memorandum of facts and appearances while they are fresh in his recollection, for such facts and appearances are generally so minute and detailed that they cannot with safety be entrusted to the memory; and although the witness may not be allowed to read such a report as part of his evidence, yet he will always be at liberty to refer to it, even in the witness-box, for the purpose of refreshing and assisting his memory. A medical witness should bear in mind that he should be well prepared on all parts of the subject on which he is about to give evidence. A man, whether learned or not, whether in Court or out of Court, will talk clearly upon a subject he well understands, whether scientific or otherwise; but unless it is clear in his own mind, his account of it will be confused and unsatisfactory. The case should be viewed in all possible aspects before entering the witness-box, and if an opinion has been formed it should be dealt with and criticised as if it were that of an adversary. As in controversy, a disputant should put himself as much as possible into the position of his antagonist, and see the question from his point of view. The demeanour of a medical witness should be that of an educated man, and suited to the serious occasion on which he appears, even though he may feel himself provoked or irritated by the course the examination adopted. In reference to facts, a medical witness must bear in mind that he should allow his testimony to be influenced by the consequences which may follow from his statement of fact, or their probable effect upon any case which is under trial. In reference to opinions, a possible influence on the fate of a prisoner should inspire caution in forming them, but when formed they should be honestly and candidly stated, without reference to consequences. Questions put on either side should receive direct answers, and the manner of the witness should not be perceptibly different whether he is replying to a question put by the counsel for the prosecution or for the defence. Care should be taken not to argue with counsel. What a witness has seen under such circumstances is not evidence, except in answers to questions, and he is there only for the purpose of stating what is relevant to the case. The replies should be concise, distinct, and audible, and, except where explanation may be necessary, they should be confined strictly to the terms of the question. Answers to questions should be neither ambiguous, undecided, nor evasive. If by a proper consideration of all the medical facts the witness has come to a conclusion on the subject, his answer should be expressed in plain and decided language, either in the affirmative or negative. A man who has formed no conclusion is not in a position to give evidence. No opinion should be given for which the witness is not prepared to assign reasons. The replies should be made in simple language free from technicality. The employment of such technical terms before persons wholly ignorant of, or but imperfectly acquainted with medical terms is offensive, but pedantry. A medical witness should for his own credit, and for that of the profession to which he belongs, employ plain and simple language in giving his evidence generally. A medical witness may, without any imputation upon his bonâ fides, explain medical points to counsel and correct him on medical subjects, when wrong in his views or statements, but he should avoid even the appearance of prompting counsel in the conduct of the case. A medical man has no privilege to avoid giving in evidence any statement made to him by a patient, but he is not bound to disclose, when called upon to do so, every communication, however private and confidential, which has been made to him while attending in his professional character. A dying declaration is not admissible in evidence, unless the deceased was conscious of approaching death, and was under a sense of impending death. Any hope of recovery, however slight, renders a dying declaration inadmissible, and the question turns rather on the state of mind at the time of making the declaration than upon the interval between it and the death. The declaration is only admissible in a charge of homicide, and where the death of the deceased is the subject of the charge and the circumstances of the death the subject of the declaration. Where a medical man is called to attend a patient suffering from some injury or disorder suspects that such injury or disorder has been caused by some third person, and by holding out a promise or threat succeeds in obtaining from such person a confession of guilt, such confession will not be received in evidence in a criminal prosecution. A medical man may be called upon to assist a jury of matrons impannelled to try whether a prisoner is quick with child. Nothing more is required to entitle any person to give evidence as a skilled medical witness than that he has been educated in his profession, and that it is necessary that he should be engaged in the practice of his profession. The tribunal must determine the weight due to such testimony in each particular instance, and it is a question of law to be decided by the Court at the trial, whether a witness offered as an expert has the necessary qualifications. It should be distinctly remembered that medical men, when called as skilled witnesses, must only say what in their judgment would be the result of certain facts submitted to them on examination, and may not give an opinion as to the general merits of the case, or on things which a jury may be supposed to be equally well acquainted. It will frequently be the duty of a medical expert, in civil as well as in criminal cases, and in all actions for malapraxis, to pass an opinion on the practice of another professional man. On such occasions, while there should be no suppression of the truth, a witness is bound, in answering questions put to him by counsel, to state his opinion, and the grounds upon which it is based, clearly and distinctly. A medical witness is not bound to be forward in pointing out and suggesting defects, or in endeavouring to depreciate the practitioner in the opinion of the public; but nothing should be concealed which is relevant to the elucidation of the case in issue.

GIFTS FROM PATIENTS.

No person who stands in a relation of special confidence to another, so as to acquire habitua influence over his mind, can accept any gift or benefit from the person who is under the dominion of that influence without danger of having the gift set aside in a Court of equity; and where there exists a relation which naturally creates influence over the mind, such as the relation between medical adviser and patient, the Court will infer, from the mere fact of the existence of such relationship between the parties, the probability of such undue influence having been exerted. In such cases, therefore, the burthen of proving that the transaction is righteous falls upon the person taking the benefit, and in order to prove this, he must show not only that the donor knew what he was doing, but also how the intention was produced. In questions of this kind, medical attendants are within that class of persons whose acts, when dealing with their patients, are watched with great jealousy. The Court does not blame or discountenance the influence itself flowing from such a relationship, but, on the contrary, considers the due exercise of it useful and advantageous to society; it holds, however, as an inseparable condition, that such influence should be exerted for the benefit of the patient, and not for the advantage of the medical attendant.

CONTRACTS WITH PATIENTS.

There is nothing in the relation of medical attendant and patient which can prevent the one from entering into a contract with the other, but while such a relation continues, a Court of equity will look upon a contract entered into without the intervention of a third party with considerable jealousy. A man who happens to be an eminent physician, and is therefore called upon to attend a number of persons, is not consequently precluded from entering into a contract with any such person, such as the purchase of a house, for instance, from any of his numerous patients; for in such a case, the contract proceeds openly and fairly, and the relation of physician and patient has in reality, no bearing upon it; but the case is far different when the relation is continued down to the time of the contract, and where the contract, in point of fact, arises out of such relation.

ACTION FOR DEFAMATION.

Any matter affecting a medical man in his profession, although not in itself actionable, becomes so if it tend to disgrace or affect him injuriously in such profession, but unless the fact be admitted in the defamatory matter, he must prove that he was in practice, and legally qualified to act in such capacity at the time when the cause of action arose, or the words could not have affected him in his profession. In every such publication the law will infer malice. Where special damage is claimed, such damages must have actually occurred, must be the natural and direct consequence of the wrongful act, and not too remote. If, however, the plaintiff fail in proving special damage, as, for instance, the loss of particular patients, he may recover damages for a general loss of business, if the matter be actionable in itself, whether such loss has or has not actually arisen at the time. Partners may sue jointly, and recover damages for injury sustained in their joint business. An action for libel (written defamation) must be brought within six years after the cause of action. An action for slander (oral defamation) must be brought within two years after the words spoken, unless such words are actionable only by reason of special damage, in which case the action may be brought at any time within six years.

PARTNERS, ASSISTANTS, &c.

In no case can a partnership exist where there is the relationship of master and servant between the parties, whatever may be the manner in which the latter is remunerated. Neither does a partnership exist where there is no joint interest. An agreement to procure a partnership for a medical man, by the assignment of patients by a third person, to whom a premium is to be paid, is not illegal. Where an individual partner acquires an office or other appointment of a personal nature, it does not become partnership property, except by special agreement, although it may have been acquired by means of partnership property and, during the partnership, the partner holding it may be accountable to the partnership for the profits. In the absence of evidence to the contrary, the presumption is that the partners are entitled to an equal share of the profits, and where the agreement is only to share the profits, under similar circumstances, the losses must be shared in the same proportion. A partner is not accountable for a free gift made to him exclusively, although the reason of the gift may be some partnership transaction, except by special agreement. Each partner may pay debts out of the partnership funds, receive debts, purchase drugs, &c., on the usual credit, and hire servants upon reasonable terms, and dismiss them, unless restrained from so doing by the partnership articles. A partner may not transfer his interest to another, so as to constitute him a member of the partnership, without the consent of the other. Where a patient has stipulated for the personal attendance of one particular member of the firm, the firm can enforce no claim, if the arrangement has not been strictly adhered to. The partnership may be dissolved by mutual agreement, or by the occurrence of any event made a ground for dissolution by the articles. A dissolution of the partnership may be obtained in equity, where one partner is systematically excluded from the business; or on the ground of permanent and wilful neglect of business, or gross misconduct as to partnership matters by one partner; or on account of the insanity of a partner, or if he become permanently incapacitated from attending to the business. In the case of a partnership between accoucheurs, it was held that the immoral conduct of one partner was alone a ground for dissolution, as the particular business of the firm would be materially affected thereby. A partnership is also dissolved, by operation of law, on the bankruptcy of a partner, or on his conviction for felony. Where a premium has been paid by one partner, the Court will, under certain circumstances, order an apportionment, and a return of part of such premium, on a dissolution. On a dissolution, the partners may separately carry on the business at any place, unless restrained by agreement. A medical man keeping an open surgery for the sale or compounding of poisons, must not engage an unqualified assistant who is not registered under the Pharmacy Acts. No person may, under a penalty of 5*l.*, act as assistant to an apothecary in compounding and dispensing medicines without first passing an examination and obtaining a certificate from the Apothecaries' Company. In every written contract with an assistant, the remuneration should be expressed, and where the master is to be paid for the board and lodging, this also should be expressed, or there must at any rate be such an agreement or understanding to that effect as will satisfy a jury. In engagements of service in the medical profession, the customs of the profession, as, for instance, to determine the contract by a month's notice, are considered as incorporated with the contract, unless excluded expressly or by implication. Where an assistant is to be remunerated by a portion of the profits, and not by a fixed salary, he is not necessarily on that account constituted a partner, as between the parties themselves. As regards third persons, he is considered a partner if he be paid by a share of the net profits, but not if he be paid by a share of the gross earnings, or by a sum of money calculated with reference to profits. Where no time is expressed, the engagement is considered a yearly hiring, and cannot be terminated before the end of the year, except by consent. A master is liable on contracts entered into by an apprentice or assistant, when he has authorized such contracts either expressly or by implication: as, for instance, where the assistant usually orders drugs and the master pays. This liability remains even after the assistant has been discharged, unless the person giving credit be made aware of the fact. Even if the contract be made in the assistant's name, the master will be liable. A master is not criminally responsible for the acts of an assistant, unless he expressly command or personally co-operate in them. Thus, if a patient's death be caused by the negligence of an assistant, or by the negligence of an assistant added to the negligence of a master, the master cannot be convicted of manslaughter. A master is, however, as a rule, civilly liable for the wrongful acts of an assistant, unless they be beyond the ordinary scope of his employment. Thus, a medical man is liable to a civil suit for injury done to a patient by the want of proper skill in his assistant, but the patient will have to prove that the injury was directly caused by such want of skill. The practice of an apprentice or unqualified assistant to an apothecary must be confined to his master's house. No action will lie against a master to recover a gratuity promised at the expiration of a period of service. An apprentice or assistant is liable to imprisonment for a breach of duty to his master involving also a public duty, as for causing the death of a patient by gross negligence. An assistant rightfully discharged has no claim for wages for the broken period of service. A master is justified in discharging an assistant for wilful disobedience of any lawful order; for gross moral misconduct, whether pecuniary or otherwise; for habitual negligence in business, or conduct calculated to seriously injure his master's business; or for incompetence or permanent disability from illness. If a good ground of discharge exist, and be shown to the master, it is sufficient to justify the discharge, although he may not insist on that as the precise ground of discharge, or even although he may allege a different ground. A master is not bound to give any character or testimonial to an assistant or apprentice on leaving; but any statement which he may make to a person making inquiries as to the character or abilities of a former apprentice or assistant will be considered privileged. An apprentice, or a pupil with whom a premium has been paid, cannot be discharged for misconduct. The misconduct lies in an action on the covenants in the indenture. In agreements made between medical men and their apprentices or assistants, the apprentice or assistant usually stipulates that he will not, after the expiration of his time of service, exercise his profession within a certain distance of the place where his master is established at the time. Such a contract is not an injurious restraint of trade, for the public derives an advantage in the unrestrained choice which such a stipulation gives to the employer of able assistants; and the security it affords that he will not withhold from his assistant instruction in the secrets of his profession, and the communication of his own skill and experience, from the fear of his afterwards having a rival in the same profession. Every such stipulation is valid, where the restraint is confined to anything like reasonable limits, but it must not extend to prohibit the person bound thereby from exercising his profession at all, although the time of such restriction be limited. Otherwise, the restraint need not be limited to the life of the person in whose favour the stipulation is made, or to the time during which such person may carry on his business or profession. If the medical man be resident in London, it is usual for the assistant to stipulate that he will not practise in London; and within a mile, or a mile and a half of the same; if the medical man reside in the suburbs, the restriction is usually confined to the place of residence and three miles from the same; if he reside in a country town, the restriction is usually confined to such town and ten miles from the same. Where no precise language is used, but the covenant is generally not to practise within so many miles of a certain place, the distance will be measured "as the crow flies," and not by roads and streets.

THE PRINCIPAL APPOINTMENTS HELD BY MEDICAL MEN.

Surgeon in the Army.
Surgeon in the Navy.
Surgeon in the Indian Army.

The principal regulations affecting these appointments are printed at length in another part of the work. See pages 1014.

Surgeon in Passenger Ship.—Every person who is to be carried as medical practitioner in a passenger ship, must be registered as a physician, surgeon, or apothecary, except in the case of a foreign ship, when it is sufficient if he be authorized by law to practise as such in the country to which the ship belongs. His appointment is subject to the approval of the Emigrat Officer at the port of clearance, and he must be provided with surgical instruments, to the satisfact of such officer. Any person not possessing the necessary qualifications trying to proceed to as ship's surgeon, is liable to a penalty not exceeding 100*l*., and not less than 10*l*.

Surgeon in Merchant Ship.—Every person to be carried as medical practitioner in a merch ship, must be registered as a physician, surgeon, or apothecary. He is, probably, entitled to for wages in the Admiralty Court as a "mariner," and consequently to claim the advantage maritime lien.

Medical Inspector of Merchant Ships.—Any local marine board may, upon being required the Board of Trade so to do, appoint and remove a medical inspector of ships for the port, w must be registered. At ports where there are no local marine boards, the Board of Trade m appoint and remove such inspectors. The remuneration of an inspector appointed by a loc marine board is fixed by such board, but is subject to the control of the Board of Trade. Whe the inspector is appointed by the Board of Trade, that Board also fixes his remuneration.

Medical Inspector of Seamen.—A medical inspector of seamen may be appointed in the sar manner as a medical inspector of merchant ships. His remuneration is fixed by the Board Trade, and paid out of the Mercantile Marine Fund.

Medical Inspector of Passenger Ships.—Is appointed by the Emigration Office at the port clearance. He must be duly registered.

Prison Surgeon.—A duly registered surgeon is appointed to every gaol, house of correctio bridewell, or penitentiary, by the justices in sessions assembled, during whose pleasure he holds h office. The amount of his salary is fixed by the justices in sessions assembled, but in the case of municipal borough, the approval of the council must be obtained. He may obtain a superannua tion allowance after holding office for twenty years, provided he be not less than sixty years of ag or if he become incapable from sickness, or from injury received in the execution of his duty. I either case, the visiting justices must report as to his good conduct. The superannuation allowanc may be either an annuity not exceeding two-thirds of his salary and emoluments, or a gratuit not exceeding the amount of his salary and emoluments for one year. He is not a subordinat officer, but he is bound to obey the directions of the gaoler in matters not regulated by Acts Parliament. In addition to the ordinary duties of visiting, examining, and attending the prisoner he is required to keep a journal, and to enter therein daily all circumstances that have come unde his professional notice during the day; and also to be present at executions, and to deliver a certi ficate of death to the sheriff. One of Her Majesty's principal Secretaries of State appoints th surgeons and assistant surgeons to the convict prisons abroad.

Factory Surgeon.—Certifying surgeons under the Factory Acts are appointed by the inspector of factories, who may also annul any such appointment. The Secretary of State may also revok any such appointment, or any order annulling such appointment. Every certifying surgeon mus be registered and in actual practice, and must not have a beneficial interest in any factory. Hi duties are to examine and to certify as to the apparent age and state of health of children an young persons to be employed in factories, and also to investigate and report on accidents taking place in such factories. The fees may be regulated by a special agreement in writing between th occupier of the factory and the surgeon, or they will, on the requisition of the occupier of th factory, be fixed by an inspector. Where the fees are fixed by an inspector, they must not, in any case where the surgeon examines more than one person, exceed 1*s*. for each person presented t him at the factory, by the occupier or his agent, to be examined, together with 6*d*. for every hal mile that the distance of the factory from the residence of the surgeon exceeds one mile. Such fees, including mileage, may not be less than 1*s*., and may in no case exceed 5*s*. for any one visit except when upon such visit the surgeon examines more than ten persons so presented to him, in which case he may claim 6*d*. for each person examined instead of all other fees. Where a factory is situated within the distance of one mile from the residence of the certifying surgeon, the fee for such factory must not exceed 2*s*. 6*d*. for each visit, except when, upon such visit, he examines more than five such persons so presented to him, in which case he may claim 6*d*. for each person examined instead of all other fees. Not more than 6*d*. may be allowed to a certifying surgeon for any certificate which he may be allowed by an inspector to sign or issue otherwise than at the factory where the person is to be employed. The occupier of the factory must pay such fees to the certifying surgeon at the time of signing such certificates, unless some other time has been appointed by the inspector. For every investigation into the causes and extent of an accident at a factory, the certifying surgeon is entitled to a fee not exceeding 10*s*., or such part thereof, not being less than 3*s*., as the inspector of the district may consider a reasonable remuneration to him for his trouble. The following is the scale of fees for investigating and reporting on accidents sanctioned by the Secretary of State for the Home Department. For the examinations and report on any accident which may not require the surgeon to travel a greater distance than one mile, 3*s*. For the examinations and report on any accident which may require the surgeon to travel a greater distance than one mile, and not more than two miles, 4*s*. For the examinations and report on any accident which may require the surgeon to travel a greater distance than two miles, and not more than three miles, 5*s*. Where any examination or report may require the surgeon to travel a greater distance than three miles, a further sum of 6*d*. for each half mile that such distance may exceed three miles. In any intricate case, or when any peculiar circumstances arise, either in making the inquiry, or framing the report, the inspectors may recommend a higher fee than those above stated, so that no fee exceeding 10*s*. be assigned for any one accident, and provided the reason for assigning such higher fee be stated by the inspector. The distances mentioned above apply to the number of miles which the surgeon is compelled to travel to make the examinations, taking the shortest way in his power, and refer only to the ground which he has to pass over in proceeding to the works, together with any additional distance which he may have to travel to examine the person injured. The distance which he has travelled in returning either from the investigation at the works, or from the examination of the person injured, is not to be added to the mileage, nor must the distance travelled to the place where the injured person is examined be added unless he has had to travel a greater distance than he would have done in returning from the investigation at the works direct to his residence.

Medical Officer of the Privy Council.—Is appointed by the Privy Council, who may remove him at their pleasure. His duty is to report to the Council as to matters affecting the public health. His salary is fixed by the Commissioners of the Treasury, but must not exceed 1500*l.* per annum.

Medical Officers under the Contagious Diseases Acts.—The Admiralty, or Secretary of State for War, may appoint, under these Acts, Visiting Surgeons and assistants (who must be registered) at places to which the Acts extend. Their duties are to examine women who are common prostitutes, either upon a justice's order, or upon the voluntary submission of the women, in writing, and to give certificates as to their state of health. The same authorities may appoint duly qualified medical men as inspectors of hospitals and assistants, at places to which the Acts extend. Their duties are to report as to the suitability of buildings proposed to be used under the Acts as certified hospitals for the reception and detention of women affected with contagious diseases, and to visit and inspect such certified hospitals from time to time.

Medical Visitors of Lunatics.—Two of these officers are appointed from time to time by the Lord Chancellor. Every candidate must be a physician in actual practice, and must not have been within the two preceding years interested in any house licensed for the reception of lunatics. The salary is 1500*l.* per annum, but the officer is after his appointment debarred from practising his profession. Travelling and incidental expenses are allowed, and the Lord Chancellor may order a superannuation allowance to any Visitor who has served for twenty years and is above sixty years of age, or who is disabled by permanent infirmity.

Medical Officers in Parishes and Unions.—Medical officers in parishes and unions, comprising a district medical officer and a workhouse medical officer, are appointed by a majority of the guardians present at a meeting of the Board consisting of more than three, or by three, if no more be present. The guardians may also, in cases of emergency, appoint one or more medical officers to act temporarily. A medical officer paid by salary may not be appointed a guardian. As a rule, the same person may be appointed medical officer for the workhouse and also for the district. Hitherto these officers have been appointed by virtue of orders issued by the Poor Law Board, which has also defined their duties, &c., by orders issued from time to time. By a recent Act, however, a new Board is to be established, entitled the "Local Government Board," to which, when formed, will be transferred all the powers, rights, and duties of the present Poor Law Board. Every medical officer must be registered as qualified to practise both medicine and surgery. The guardians may suspend a medical officer from the discharge of his duties, and the Poor Law Board may, at their discretion, remove him from office. Subject to these provisions, a medical officer holds office until he dies, resigns, or is proved insane. Under very special circumstances, the guardians may appoint as district officer a medical man registered with one qualification only. Officers cannot be appointed joint medical officers of a district, but they may be appointed individually as medical officers of distinct districts in the same or in any other union. A medical officer may be transferred from one district to another by the guardians without vacating his appointment. The transfer can only be made with his consent. Every medical officer must name to the guardians a duly registered substitute to whom applications for medicines and attendance may be made in case of his absence from home. He may not expressly delegate to his assistant the duties of his office, but he may name an assistant or partner as his substitute. The guardians may object to the appointment of any person as substitute of whom they may not approve. As a general rule, the guardians may not assign to any medical officer a district which exceeds in extent the area of 15000 statute acres, or which contains a population exceeding 15,000 persons. This does not apply to Wales, but no such district therein may be assigned to a medical officer residing more than seven miles from any part of any parish included within such district. In addition to the regular salary, the guardians may, with the consent of the Poor Law Board, pay to medical officers reasonable compensation for extraordinary services. A medical officer is entitled to an extra fee of not less than 10*s.*, or more than 20*s.*, for attending a woman in or immediately after childbirth, and to a fee of 2*l.* where great difficulty has occurred in the delivery, or long subsequent attendance has been necessary. He is also entitled to charge extra for services performed on board ship in compliance with any regulation of the Board of Health, and such charges are to be paid by the captain of the vessel. Remuneration for the operations mentioned below is not included in the salary of a district medical officer, but they are paid for after the following rates:—Treatment of compound fractures of the thigh, or treatment of compound fractures or compound dislocation of the leg, or amputation of leg, arm, foot, or hand, or operation for strangulated hernia—5*l.* Treatment of simple fractures or simple dislocations of the thigh or leg, including fracture of the neck of the thigh-bone or of the malleolus externus; but not of the knee-cap, tarsus, metatarsus, or toes—3*l.* Treatment of dislocations or simple or compound fractures of the arm, including dislocation of the shoulder, elbow, or wrist, and fracture of the humerus, ulna, and radius; but not fracture of the ribs, clavicle, scapula, acromion, elbow, carpus, metacarpus, fingers, or thumbs—1*l.* These rates include all charges for apparatus, &c., and for future attendance. If the patient does not survive the operation thirty-six hours, only half the above fees are paid. No such fees become payable unless the medical officer has, before the operation, obtained, at his own cost, the advice of a M.R.C.S. Eng. or a F. or

L.R.C.P. Lond. If several of such fees become payable with respect to the same person, at the same time, in consequence of the same injury, only one (the highest) fee is payable. The guardians may also allow extra remuneration for any other surgical case presenting special difficulty. A medical officer must have attained the age of sixty years, and have served as such for twenty years, before he is entitled to superannuation. He need not have devoted his whole time to the services of the union or parish by which the superannuation is granted. The allowance must not exceed two-thirds of his salary. It is payable in trust only. Every medical officer must give to the guardians, when required, any reasonable information as to a pauper who is or has been under his care, and must give a certificate as to the health of any child under fourteen to be bound apprentice by them. The workhouse or other parish officers must pay him for attendance as private patients. He is liable to a heavy penalty if he induces any poor person to leave his parish with intent to cause such person to become chargeable to some other parish. He may not employ a midwife as his substitute. He must visit once a quarter every pauper lunatic in his district not in an asylum or licensed house, and must also, under a penalty of 10*l*., give notice to the relieving officer or one of the overseers, of any pauper lunatic in his district who ought to be sent to an asylum, within three days after obtaining knowledge thereof.

Public Vaccinator.—Public Vaccinators are appointed by the guardians in unions and parishes. The form of contract to be employed on such occasions is prescribed by the Poor Law Board. Every Public Vaccinator must be duly registered with qualifications both in medicine and surgery, and must have obtained a certificate of instruction in vaccination from some public vaccinator authorized by the Privy Council to grant such certificates. Vaccinating stations for instruction and examination are established in London, Birmingham, Bristol, Leeds, Liverpool, Manchester, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Sheffield, Exeter, Edinburgh, and Glasgow. It is the duty of a public vaccinator to vaccinate any child resident within his district brought to him for that purpose, and to examine the same the following week, and give a certificate, after a prescribed form, according to the success or non-success of the operation. He must not certify that a child is insusceptible of successful vaccination unless he has vaccinated it three times unsuccessfully. He must transmit a certificate of each case of successful vaccination to the vaccination officer for his district within seven days after he has ascertained that the operation has been successfully performed; and a certificate that a child is unfit for or insusceptible of successful vaccination within seven days after the examination of such child. All necessary forms will be obtained from the new Local Government Board. Re-vaccination must be limited by the following conditions—(1) That, so far as he can ascertain, the applicant has attained the age of 15 years, or, if during any immediate danger of small-pox, 12 years, and has not before been successfully vaccinated. (2) That, in his judgment, the proposed re-vaccination is not, for any sufficient medical reason, undesirable. (3) That he can afford lymph without postponing the claims for primary vaccination. The contract with the guardians may only provide for payment for successful vaccinations, and the rate for primary vaccinations must not be lower than the following scale, viz.—For every such vaccination done at an appointed station, situated at or within one mile from the residence of the vaccinator, or in the workhouse of the parish—1*s*. 6*d*. For every such vaccination done at any station over one mile and under two miles from his residence—2*s*. For every such vaccination done at any station over two miles from his residence—3*s*. Distance to be measured according to the nearest carriage-road. A public vaccinator may not charge any fee to the parent or other person for his certificate. The fees for successful re-vaccination are two-thirds of the fees above given. A penalty not exceeding 20*s*. may be imposed on any person preventing a public vaccinator from taking lymph from a child.

Medical Officer of Health.—Local Boards may, if they think fit, appoint a legally qualified medical practitioner, from time to time, as medical officer of health. In the metropolis, every vestry and district board must appoint one or more such officers. In districts where the Towns' Improvement Clauses Act 1847 is incorporated with the local act, the commissioners, trustees, or other persons, or body corporate entrusted by the local act with powers for executing the purposes thereof, may, subject to the approval of the Secretary of State, appoint one such officer from time to time. The principal duties of such officers are to inspect and report periodically on the sanitary condition of their districts, to ascertain the existence of diseases, more especially epidemics, increasing the rate of mortality, to point out the existence of dangerous nuisances, and to point out the best means of checking or preventing the spread of epidemics and contagious diseases, and the most efficient modes of ventilating churches, schools, &c. within such districts.

RECOVERY OF FEES AND CHARGES FROM PRIVATE PATIENTS AND PUBLIC AUTHORITIES.

Every duly registered medical man is entitled to demand and recover in any court of law, with full costs of suit, reasonable charges for professional aid, advice, and visits, and the costs of any medicines, or other medical or surgical appliances rendered or supplied by him to his patients, and no person is entitled to recover any such charges, unless he can prove, upon the trial, that he is so registered. Like proof is required from a medical man who files a bill to obtain sums due to him professionally from a testator's estate, or who is suing on a promissory note given for professional services. A medical man may recover such charges if he be registered at the time of trial, although he may not have been registered when he gave his professional attendance. A firm, one member whereof is registered as a Surgeon and Apothecary, and the other as a Surgeon only, may recover on a joint claim for attendances and medicines supplied in both capacities, and it would seem that a firm may recover in like manner although one of the members thereof be unregistered. A registered practitioner may sue for services rendered by an unregistered assistant, and an unregistered assistant may sue a registered practitioner for his salary, but an unregistered practitioner cannot recover on a contract made with a registered practitioner to attend his patients, at a fixed salary, during his absence. A copy of the medical register is evidence that the persons named therein are registered, and the absence of a name from such register is evidence, until the contrary be proved, that such person is not registered. A master is not bound to provide medical assistance for a servant, and a medical man who attends a servant must, unless he has an express understanding to the contrary with the master, look to the servant for payment. An infant may contract and render himself liable for medicines and medical aid, and a wife may pledge her husband's credit for the same. The customs of the profession are considered as imported into all contracts between medical men and their patients. A medical man may recover charges according to a scale varying with the class of patients visited, if the same be fair and reasonable. An uncertificated bankrupt may recover for professional attendance and advice. The right of a medical man to recover does not depend upon his effecting a cure. The general rule is that if there has been no beneficial service at all there shall be no pay; but if some benefit has been derived, though not to the extent expected, this shall go to the amount of the demand, leaving the patient to his action for negligence. A physician is now, in the absence of a distinct understanding to the contrary, entitled to be paid for his services, unless restrained by a bye-law of the college to which he may belong. A person registered with a surgical qualification only is not entitled to recover for attendance in cases not belonging to his branch of medicine, as, for instance, in a case of typhus fever. He may, however, dispense and administer medicines as subordinate and subservient to a surgical case which he is attending. The test is that where, in any particular instance, the medical man judges of the malady by the symptoms of the patient in regard to the internal functions of the body, and applies himself to cure it, not by manual operation externally, but by the administration of medicine internally, the case cannot be classed as a surgical one. There is no rule of law which prevents an apothecary from making distinct charges for attendances and for medicines. A registered apothecary is not precluded from recovering for medicines and attendances furnished in London, although possessing an extra-urban licence only. In all cases where a servant falls ill or meets with an accident, and is unable to pay for necessary medical assistance, the parish is bound to supply such assistance although the servant may not have previously stood in need of parish relief. If a deputy overseer, or even a mere stranger, direct a surgeon to attend a poor man, such person is liable for the surgeon's bill. A medical man called on by the police to visit a sick person in a station house within the metropolitan district may claim the sum of 3*s.* 6*d.* for every such visit paid in the daytime, and the sum of 7*s.* 6*d.* for every such visit paid between the hours of 11 P.M. and 6 A.M. A certificate of attendance should be obtained, at the time, from the inspector on duty. The same fees have been recovered for similar services in various places in England, as being fair and reasonable. A medical man (not being a parish officer) who attends any sick on board ship, under regulations made by the Privy Council for such purpose, is entitled to charge at the same rate as he is in the habit of doing in the case of private patients of the same rank, with extra charge for distance. Such charges are payable by the captain, on behalf of the owner. A medical man who reports to an Insurance Company as to the state of health of a patient, can only recover from the Company a fee for such service upon an express undertaking to pay such fee, although the report be made upon a form supplied by the office. A guard, or the superintendent of the station of a railway, has no authority to bind the Company by a contract entered into with a medical man to attend a passenger injured by an accident on the railway. The general manager of a railway may, however, bind the Company by such a contract to attend a servant of the railway injured in an accident in the performance of his duties. On a parole contract with a public board to perform certain professional services for such recompense as the board may allow as right and proper, an action will lie to recover a reasonable recompense, although the board tender what they consider right and proper. If there be a formal written contract, however, no such action will lie. The following are the fees and charges which may be claimed by medical men when called upon to give evidence in Courts of Law. Except in criminal cases, these fees, &c., are payable although the witness be not called upon to give professional evidence:—In the Superior Courts, and in Equity, 1*l.* 1*s.* a day, if resident in the town in which the cause is tried; 2*l.* 2*s.* to 3*l.* 3*s.* a day, if resident at a distance from the place of trial, inclusive of all except travelling expenses. If the witness attend in more than one cause, he is entitled to a proportionate part in each cause only. For travelling expenses, the amount reasonably and actually paid is allowed, provided it does not exceed 1*s.* per mile one way. In the Probate Court, 1*l.* 1*s.* a day, if resident within five miles of the General Post Office; 3*l.* 3*s.* a day, if resident beyond that distance (including board and lodging). The same allowance for travelling expenses as in the Superior Courts. In the Divorce Court, 1*l.* 1*s.* a day, if resident within five miles of the General Post Office. From 2*l.* 2*s.* to 3*l.* 3*s.* a day, if resident beyond that distance (including board and lodging). The same allowance as in the Probate Court for travelling expenses. In the House of Lords, Physicians and Surgeons 2*l.* 2*s.* a day, and 1*l.* 1*s.* a day for hotel expenses if from home. Apothecaries 1*l.* 1*s.* a day, and the same allowance for hotel expenses. Higher charges are allowed under special circumstances. Sundays do not count as time. The sum necessarily expended is allowed for travelling expenses. In the County Court, from 10*s.* to 1*l.* a day. For travelling expenses, the sum reasonably paid, not more than 6*d.* a mile one way. In the Admiralty Court, from 1*l.* 1*s.* to 3*l.* 3*s.* a day, including board and lodging. The same allowance as in the Superior Courts for travelling expenses. In the Bankruptcy Court, 1*l.* 1*s.* a day, if resident in the town in which the Court is held. From 1*l.* 1*s.* to 3*l.* 3*s.* a day, if resident at a distance from the Court (including subsistence). Travelling expenses 7*d.* a mile one way, where no railway is available, or expenses actually incurred. In the Lord Mayor's Court, 10*s*. 6*d*. to 1*l*. 1*s*. a day, and the same allowance for travelling expenses as in the Superior Courts. The expenses of witnesses in most cases of misdemeanor and in all cases of felony are now allowed. On an examination before a magistrate, a sum not exceeding 10*s*. 6*d*. may be allowed to a medical witness residing in the city, borough, or parish where the examination takes place or within two miles thereof, and to such a witness residing beyond that distance a sum not to exceed 1*l*. 1*s*. For mileage, a sum not exceeding 3*d*. a mile each way. Medical witnesses attending Courts of Assize, General Sessions of the Peace, &c., to give professional evidence, but not otherwise, may be allowed 1*l*. 1*s*. a day, with 2*s*. for every night they are detained from home and for mileage, a sum not exceeding 3*d*. a mile each way. Every legally qualified practitioner who has attended at a Coroner's Inquest, in obedience to a Coroner's order, is entitled to a fee of 1*l*. 1*s*. for attending to give evidence, where no post-mortem examination has been made, and to a fee of 2*l*. 2*s*. for making a post-mortem examination and attending to give evidence. No fee can however, be claimed for the performance of a post-mortem examination instituted without the previous direction of the Coroner. These fees are to be advanced and paid by the Coroner immediately after the termination of the Inquest.

THE SALE OF POISONS.

A medical practitioner, not being a legally qualified apothecary, is prohibited from selling or keeping an open surgery for retailing, dispensing, or compounding poisons, under a penalty of 5*l*., unless he was either registered before August 11th, 1869, or has been registered since that date, after passing an examination in pharmacy in order to obtain his diploma for such registration. A legally qualified medical practitioner may dispense to his patients medicines containing poison, but such medicine should be labelled with his name and address, and the ingredients thereof, and the name of the person to whom it is sent should be entered in a book to be kept by him for the purpose. A medical man who keeps an open surgery, must conform to the same regulations as to the sale and compounding of poisons as are imposed upon chemists and druggists, under a penalty of 5*l*. for the first, and 10*l*. for each subsequent offence. The articles which are to be deemed poisons are divided into two classes:—Part I. comprises arsenic and its preparations, prussic acid, cyanides of potassium, and all metallic cyanides, strychnine and all poisonous vegetable alkaloids and their salts, aconite and its preparations, emetic tartar, corrosive sublimate, cantharides, savin and its oil, ergot of rye and its preparations, preparations of prussic acid, preparations of cyanide of potassium, and of all metallic cyanides, preparations of strychnine, and preparations of atropine. Part II. comprises oxalic acid, chloroform, belladonna and its preparations, essential oil of almonds (unless deprived of its prussic acid), opium, and all preparations of opium or of poppies, preparations of corrosive sublimate, preparations of morphine, red oxide of mercury, ammoniated mercury, and the tincture and all vesicating liquid preparations of cantharides. On the sale of any poison contained in Part I. or Part II., the box, vessel, or cover in which it is contained must be labelled with the name of the article, the word "poison," and the name and address of the seller. No poison included in Part I. may be sold to any person unknown to the seller, unless introduced by some person known to the seller, and upon every such sale the seller must, before delivery, enter in a book to be kept for the purpose, the date, the name and address of the purchaser, the name and quantity of poison sold, and the purpose for which it is required, and must also cause the purchaser, and the person introducing the purchaser, to sign their names therein. Further restrictions are imposed on the sale of arsenic, except where the same forms part of a medicine compounded according to the prescription of a member of the medical profession, and a penalty of 20*l*. may be inflicted upon any one not conforming to the necessary regulations. If the purchaser be not known to the seller, a witness to the sale, who must be known to both, is required, and the sale must be made in his presence. The seller must, before delivery, enter into a book, to be kept for the purpose, the date of sale, the name and surname of purchaser, his place of abode and condition and occupation, the quantity of arsenic sold, and the purpose for which it is required, and must also sign his own name after such statement, and cause the purchaser to sign his name and address. No arsenic may be sold to a person under age; nor may any arsenic be sold unless, before the sale, it be mixed with soot or indigo, in the proportion of one ounce of soot or half an ounce of indigo, at the least, to each pound of arsenic. But if the purchaser state that the arsenic is required not for use in agriculture, but for some other purpose for which such admixture would, according to his representation, render it unfit, such arsenic may be sold without such admixture, in a quantity of not less than ten pounds at any one time.

CERTIFICATES IN LUNACY.

As a general rule, two certificates are required with every insane person who is to be placed in an asylum or licensed house, each of which must be signed by a registered physician, surgeon, or apothecary, in actual practice. Each certificate must state that the patient is a proper person to be taken charge of and detained, and the person signing the same must specify the facts upon which he has formed his opinion that the patient is a lunatic, idiot, or person of unsound mind, and must distinguish facts observed by himself from facts communicated to him by others. It must not be founded only upon facts communicated by others, nor must there be any want of certainty in stating the facts required to be specified. The two medical men who sign the certificates must not be partners, nor must one be an assistant to the other, nor may either of them be a commissioner or visitor; nor, if the patient is to be received into a licensed house, or a hospital, may either certificate be signed by any one who, or whose father, brother, son, partner, or assistant is wholly or partly the proprietor of, or a regular professional attendant in such house or hospital, or has signed the order for the reception of the patient; nor may any person receiving any percentage on, or otherwise interested in, the payments to be made by or on account of the patient, or keeping a licensed house, or attending, in his medical capacity, a licensed house, asylum, hospital, or place where any lunatic may be confined, sign a certificate for the reception of a private patient into any licensed or other house; nor may any one who, or whose father, brother, son, partner, or assistant shall sign the order for the reception of a patient into an asylum sign the certificate for the reception of the same patient. Medical men signing certificates contrary to any of these provisions are liable to heavy penalties. Each medical man must, separately from the other, have personally examined the person to whom the certificate signed by him relates, not more than seven clear days previously to the reception of such person into the house or hospital. If he be not satisfied with his own personal examination, he is bound to make further inquiries before signing the certificate. The certificate need not be dated on the day of examination. Any person falsely stating or certifying anything in such certificate, and any person not being a physician, surgeon, or apothecary, signing as such, is guilty of a misdemeanor. A medical man, moreover, signing any such certificate which is untrue, without taking due care and making due inquiries, is liable to an action by the person injured by the consequences which may ensue. He is only liable, however, where he has wilfully signed a false certificate, or where he has been guilty of gross negligence in conducting the examination. If the certificate be signed maliciously, and without reasonable or probable cause, it may also be treated as a libel.

THE NEW VACCINATION ACT.

By this Act, which is to come into operation on the 1st day of the present year (1872), it is provided that the guardians of every union and parish shall appoint one or more "Vaccination Officers," and assign to them districts coinciding either with vaccination districts, or the districts of registrars of birth and deaths. The new Local Government Board will make rules and regulations respecting, and distribute appropriate books and forms to, vaccination officers, public vaccinators, and medical practitioners performing vaccination. The vaccination officer is to perform all the duties which were imposed upon the registrar of births and deaths by the old Vaccination Act (1867). To him the public vaccinator must transmit a certificate of successful vaccination within 7 days after he has ascertained that the operation has been successfully performed, and also a certificate in every case where he finds a child unfit for or insusceptible of successful vaccination, within 7 days after the examination of such child. A penalty not exceeding 20*s.* may be inflicted on any person failing to comply with these provisions. The registrar of births and deaths is likewise bound to transmit every month a list of births and deaths within his district to each vaccination officer whose district wholly or partially falls within his own. Any person who has been re-vaccinated by a public vaccinator, without charge, and who fails to attend for inspection on the appointed day in the following week, is to pay a fee of 2*s.* 6*d.* to the guardians. Any person preventing a public vaccinator from taking lymph is to be liable to a penalty not exceeding 20*s.* A public vaccinator who finds, upon personal examination, that a child resident in his district not vaccinated by him, has been successfully vaccinated, may, upon request, grant a certificate to such effect to the parent of the child. Such certificate will have the same force as a certificate of successful vaccination by himself. A Poor Law medical officer who in the course of his duties vaccinates any person resident in the house of a person ill with small-pox, who has never been vaccinated or had the small-pox, or who re-vaccinates any such person, who has never been re-vaccinated, is now entitled to be paid the same fees in respect of every such case as he would be entitled to receive if he were the public vaccinator for the district. He must, however, transmit the same certificates as he would be required to transmit if he were such public vaccinator.

THE NEW LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD ACT.

By this Act, which became law on the 14th of August last, it is provided that a Board shall be established, consisting of a president appointed by the Crown, the President of the Privy Council, all the principal Secretaries of State, the Lord Privy Seal, and the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and that after its establishment the Poor Law Board shall cease to exist, and all the powers and duties vested in or imposed on the Poor Law Board shall be transferred to the new Board. To this new Board, also, are to be transferred all the powers and duties of the Secretary of State with reference to the Acts affecting public health, drainage, sanitary matters, the registration of births, deaths, and marriages, &c., and also all the powers and duties of the Privy Council with reference to the Acts affecting the Prevention of Disease and Vaccination. Rules and orders of the new Board are to be proved in the same manner as rules and orders of the Poor Law Board have hitherto been proved.

EMPLOYMENT OF POOR-LAW MEDICAL OFFICERS FOR SANITARY PURPOSES.

The Royal Sanitary Commission, in its Report, which was presented to Parliament early last year (1871), after suggesting that there shall be established a central sanitary office, and central medical staff, recommends that the services of Poor-law medical officers throughout the kingdom shall be utilized, under the guidance of the Central Authority, for sanitary purposes. The first part of this suggestion has been already carried out, and the way for carrying out the second part has been paved by the Act for establishing a "Local Government Board," to which will be entrusted the administration of the laws concerning the public health, and also the laws concerning the relief of the poor. Further legislation is promised by the Government as to the second part of such suggestion. The following is the portion of the report referred to:—

"The fitness of the Poor-law medical officers for larger sanitary works than they now discharge cannot be doubted. They are all fully qualified medical practitioners, intimately acquainted with the poorer classes, among whom are the most frequent needs of employing sanitary skill, and the best opportunities for sanitary studies. They are (speaking generally) sensible, humane, and well-informed men; they are constantly engaged in the cure of diseases, and, through their intimate knowledge of their several districts, have the best opportunities of tracing the sources of disease.

"In rural districts it is probable that there would be very few exceptions to the rule that the medical officers of health would be also the Poor Law medical officers. In large towns, and other places in which the Guardians would not be the Sanitary Authorities, but in which Local Boards may now appoint local officers of health for one or more districts, the rule would not always be practicable or expedient. In these cases, the mutual relations of the officers of health appointed by the Local Sanitary Authority, and of the Poor Law medical officers appointed by the Guardians, should be arranged by the Local Authorities, with the approval of the Central Authority.

"Similarly, there will be need of special adjustments in cases where the boundaries of the health districts differ so widely from the boundaries of the districts of the Poor Law medical officers that the balance of convenience would favour the holding of the two offices by different persons. But in every case we think it desirable that, so far as possible, the services of the Poor Law medical officers should be utilized for sanitary purposes.

"The chief duties of a medical officer of health, in addition to such local duties as may be assigned to him by the Local Authority, should be:—

"1. To study and report to the Central Office, as well as to his own Local Authority, with all possible despatch, all things relating to considerable changes in the health of his district.

"2. To collect from the local registrars, inspectors of nuisances, and others, materials which may be combined with his own observations in general reports on the health of his district, together with his recommendations thereon.

"3. To supply information on all necessary inquiries to inspectors on their circuits.

"4. To ascertain and certify, personally or by deputy, the causes of death in cases in which it is not otherwise medically certified.

"For the purpose of his reports, of all of which one copy should be kept in the district, and be accessible to all ratepayers, and another be transmitted to the Central Office, each officer of health should be supplied, from the Central Office, with forms for district returns relating to health, with spaces for statements as to conditions of houses, factories, water supply, drainage, food, and other recognised sources of ill health.

"Officers willing to undertake observations of weather, analysis of water, or other scientific inquiries bearing on public health, should be entitled to receive, as the medical officers of the army do, on conditions to be determined by the Central Authority, meteorological instruments and apparatus for chemical analysis, and records of their observations should be open to the inspection of the ratepayers of their districts, and be communicated to the Central Office.

"Great importance should be attached to the preparation and collection of these local sanitary reports, and assistance and encouragement should be given to medical officers of health to induce them to study all sanitary questions, and to make their reports as complete as possible. Every local medical officer of health should have the like powers as are given to inspectors of nuisances, to call for reports from any inspector of nuisances in his district, and every report made by any inspector of nuisances should be made also to him. He should also be empowered to require from the local registrars of births, marriages, and deaths, any such information, reasonably within their departments, as may help in completing the public health reports in his district. Moreover, the local medical officers of health should be empowered to obtain, at the Office of the Local Authority, all reasonable assistance in the clerical work of their reports and statistical returns, especially in making copies for the local office. In recognition of satisfactory returns, the medical officers of health supplying them should receive copies of the reports of the Central Office on all subjects relating to such returns; and upon such conditions as may be agreed upon by the Central Authority and the General Medical Council of registration and education, the Registrar of the Council should be required to register, as an additional title, the title of officer of public health, or of inspector of public health.

"In order that medical officers of health may be able to discharge their duties without fear of personal loss, they should not be removable from office by any Local Authority, except with the sanction of the Central Authority. They should not, as a rule, be hindered from the private practice of their profession, or from holding any public office, such as Inspector of nuisances, factories, or workshops, Coroner, or Hospital medical officer.

"We have already expressed the belief that with such a sanitary staff as we should propose, the best means would be provided for the increase and diffusion of sanitary knowledge. Supervision of the public health in every part of the country, however small or remote from the centre, being exercised by competent persons, familiar with all the circumstances of their several districts, and encouraged in the study of sanitary science, will not only insure the swift detection of prevalent disease, and the application of its most probable remedy, but will conduce to a more comprehensive and exact study of the sources of disease than is now possible. The inquiries of the local medical officers will be guided from the Central Office with the highest attainable medical and scientific knowledge; and their reports will supply a vast collection of facts for the study and elaboration of the central officers."

MATRICULATION.

[LL.B. Candidates for the Degree of B.A., and candidates for the Degree of B.Sc., of M.B., or of M.C., who have not graduated in Arts either in the University of Sydney, or in that of Melbourne, are required to have passed the Matriculation Examination.

The Matriculation Examination is among those Examinations of which every Medical Student commencing his professional studies after September, 1861, is required (by the Regulations of the Medical Council) to have passed some one. And it is accepted by the Royal College of Surgeons of England in place of the Preliminary Examination otherwise imposed on candidates for its Fellowship.]

There are two Examinations for Matriculation in each year; one commencing on the second Monday in January, and the other on the last Monday in June. No candidate is admitted to the Matriculation Examination unless he have produced a certificate showing that he has completed his seventeenth year. A fee of two pounds is paid at Matriculation. The examination is conducted by means of printed papers; but the Examiners are not precluded from putting, for the purpose of ascertaining the competence of the candidates to pass, viva-voce questions to any candidate in the subjects in which they are appointed to examine. Candidates for the Matriculation Examination are examined in the following subjects:—Mathematics; Arithmetic and Algebra; Geometry. Natural Philosophy. Chemistry. Classics: The Greek and Latin Languages. (One Greek and one Latin subject, to be selected one year and a half previously by the Senate.) The English Language: Outlines of English History and Modern Geography. The French or the German Language, at the option of the Candidate. Candidates shall not be approved by the Examiners unless they show a competent knowledge in—1. Classics; 2. The English Language, English History, and Modern Geography; 3. Mathematics; 4. Natural Philosophy; 5. Chemistry; 6. Either the French or the German Language.

MEDICINE.—BACHELOR OF MEDICINE.

Candidates for the degree of Bachelor of Medicine shall be required: 1. To have passed the Matriculation Examination of this University, or to have taken a degree in Arts in either of the Universities of Sydney, Melbourne, or Calcutta (provided, in the last case, that Latin has been one of the subjects in which he has passed). 2. To have been engaged in their professional studies during four years subsequently to Matriculation or Graduation in Arts, at one or more of the Medical Institutions or schools recognised by this University; one year, at least, of the four, to have been spent in one or more of the recognised institutions or schools in the United Kingdom. 3. To pass the preliminary scientific examination,* and two examinations in Medicine.

PRELIMINARY SCIENTIFIC EXAMINATION.

The Preliminary Scientific Examination shall take place once in each year, and shall commence on the third Monday in July. No candidate shall be admitted to this Examination until he shall have completed his seventeenth year, and shall have either passed the Matriculation Examination or taken a degree in Arts in either of the Universities of Sydney, Melbourne, or Calcutta; nor unless he have given notice of his intention to the Registrar at least fourteen days before the commencement of the Examination. The fee for this Examination shall be five pounds. No candidate shall be admitted to the Examination unless he have previously paid this Fee to the Registrar. If a candidate withdraw or fail to pass the Examination, the Fee shall not be returned to him: but he shall be admissible to any two subsequent Preliminary Scientific Examinations

* Candidates who matriculated previously to January, 1861, will not be required to pass the Preliminary Scientific Examination in any other subjects than Chemistry and Botany; and they will be allowed to pass the Preliminary Scientific Examination and the First M.B. Examination in the same year, if they so prefer.

No Certificates of Lectures, or of Anatomical Instructions delivered in private to particular Students apart from the ordinary classes of recognised public Medical Schools, can be received by the Court of Examiners.

All testimonials must be given on a printed schedule, and the students' attendance certified by the Dean or Secretary of the school, or the officer appointed for that purpose. Students will be supplied with schedules at the time of their first registration; in London, at the Apothecaries' Hall; in the provincial towns from the gentlemen who keep the registers of the medical schools, and whose names may be known on application to the secretary of the court. All students, in London, are required personally to register the several classes for which they have taken tickets, and those only will be considered as complying with the regulations of the court, whose names and classes in the register correspond with their schedules. Tickets of admission to lectures and medical practice must be registered in the months of October and May. Due notice of the days and hours of such registrations will be given from time to time. The court also requires students at the provincial medical schools to register their names in their own handwriting, with the registrar of each respective school, within the first fifteen days of October, and first fifteen days of May.

EXAMINATION IN ARTS.

An Examination in Arts will take place at the Hall three times in the year, viz., on the last Friday and Saturday in the months January, April, and September. By order of the Medical Council, an Examination in Arts is compulsory on all gentlemen commencing their studies on or after the 1st of October, 1861, and must be passed previous to registration.

* By Practical Chemistry is intended a specific course of Instruction in the Laboratory, with an opportunity of personal Manipulation in the Ordinary Processes of Chemistry, and of acquiring a knowledge of the various Re-Agents for Poisons.

† A Certificate of attendance, on not less than 20 cases, will be received from a legally qualified Practitioner.

pupils. Bed-side instruction is given by all the physicians and surgeons, and the out-patient practice, as well as the special departments for female disorders and skin diseases, are similarly utilized. The hour of visit is 1 o'clock P.M. daily, when a physician and surgeon see the in-patients, and a similar arrangement holds good with regard to out-patients. The day for operations is Saturday, at 2 P.M. A large number of casualties are annually admitted, affording valuable opportunity for surgical practice. The central position of the Hospital, and the new and compact school premises, containing every necessary appliance, offer special advantages to students.

This Hospital, founded by THOMAS GUY, in 1721, for the reception of 400 patients, and having been enlarged through the aid of a large bequest from the late WILLIAM HUNT, contains at the present time 720 beds, the new wing being completed, and, with its extensive buildings and large playing grounds, occupies an area of about six acres. The Hospital is divided into Medical, Surgical, Clinical, Ophthalmic, Uterine, and Venereal Wards, independently of separate rooms for special cases. In the year 1870, 81,771 persons were relieved by its means, 5123 as in-patients, 14,071 as out-patients, and 49,220 as casualties, besides 2183 women who were attended in their confinements, and 11,174 who received advice for minor injuries.

Wards containing fifty beds are devoted to Ophthalmic Surgery, and the patients in these have their special dressers and reporters appointed in the usual manner. About 2500 Ophthalmic cases are seen annually as out-patients. Recently the Eye Department of the Hospital has been extended, and a room has been fitted up for operating on the Eye, and another provided with an Ophthalmoscope for use of Students.

Gentlemen desirous of becoming Students must produce satisfactory testimony as to their Education and Conduct.

The Hospital contains 305 beds, and there are special departments for cancer (36 beds), for diseases of the eye and teeth, and for diseases of women and children, and syphilis.

The in-patients are visited daily at one o'clock. Surgical operations are performed on Wednesdays at one. Clinical lectures are delivered weekly by the physicians and surgeons and by the Physician-Accoucheur respectively. The medical and surgical out-patients are attended on four days in the week by the assistant-physicians and assistant-surgeons, and every opportunity is taken to render this department available to the pupils for the practical study of disease.

Midwifery and the Diseases of Women and Children: Upwards of 850 cases of labour were attended under the direction of the physician-accoucheur during the last year. A ward is appropriated to the treatment of diseases peculiar to women. Out-patients with uterine and infantile diseases are seen by the physician-accoucheur on Wednesdays and Saturdays at one o'clock.

Cancer Department: Both in and out-patients suffering from cancer are admitted without letters. The period of residence of the former is unlimited; the latter are seen on Tuesdays at half-past one o'clock.

Ophthalmic Department: Mr. Hulke sees out-patients suffering from diseases of the eye on Tuesday and Friday mornings, at half-past eight o'clock.

Diseases of the Skin are seen every Thursday, at four o'clock, by Dr. Liveing.

Dental Surgery: Pupils receive instruction on diseases of the teeth, and the operations connected with them.

Post-mortem Examinations are made at two o'clock daily, under the superintendence of Dr. King and Mr. Morris.

Three Clinical Prizes, including the Governors' Prize of 20 guineas, will be awarded to those students who shall pass the most satisfactory examination at the bedside and in the post-mortem room. Class Prizes will also be given. There are also valuable rewards in the form of six resident medical appointments, for students who have completed their education and complied with the regulations of the school.

The College Tutor assists all general Students free of charge, especially those who are preparing for examination. His daily instruction is so arranged as to meet the requirements of junior and senior students respectively, and with a view to avoid the necessity for obtaining any additional private teaching apart from that of the Medical School.

General fee for attendance at the Hospital practice and lectures required by the Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons and the Society of Apothecaries, £90, which may be paid by instalments.

LONDON SCHOOL OF DENTAL SURGERY.

32, Soho Square. W.

(For Regulations of the Royal College of Surgeons relating to Professional Education of Candidates for Examination in Dental Surgery, see p. 181.)

It was felt by the founders of the London School of Dental Surgery, that the opportunities afforded to the Student at the existing Medical Schools and General Hospitals, for the acquirement of a knowledge of those subjects embraced in an ordinary Medical education, could not be equalled by a special School; while, on the other hand, the opportunities offered by a special School in connexion with a Dental Hospital for the instruction of Pupils on the subjects which specially relate to Dental Surgery, would be much greater than could be secured in an institution devoted to general Medical education. Hence in the formation of the London School of Dental Surgery, provision was made for teaching those branches of science only which pertain specially to Dentistry; and the School was organized in connexion with the Dental Hospital of London, in order that practical instruction in subjects specially pertaining to Dental Surgery might be accompanied by systematic teaching, under the conditions enjoined by the Curriculum.

Digitized by Google

The Hospital was opened on Monday, October 3rd, 1859, for the reception of Pupils, who receive practical instruction from the Dental Officers, and when sufficiently advanced, are themselves intrusted with the treatment of cases.

The Lectures on the subjects specially pertaining to Dental Surgery (excepting those upon Mechanical Dentistry and Metallurgy) are given during the Summer Medical Session, in order that Students may be at liberty to attend at any of the existing Medical Schools those lectures required by the Curriculum upon subjects which are not peculiar to Dental Surgery.

Dental Anatomy and Physiology (Human and Comparative): Mr. C. S. Tomes. Dental Surgery and Pathology: Mr. Samuel Cartwright. Mechanical Dentistry: Mr. J. S. ROYAL SCHOOL OF MINES.

DEPARTMENT OF SCIENCE AND ART, JERMYN STREET, S.W.—Established 1851.

The chief object and distinctive character of this Institution (to which everything else is made subsidiary) is to give a practical direction to the course of scientific study. Although the education provided in it will not of itself qualify the student to undertake the direction of mining and other practical operations, yet the knowledge which he may acquire of the principles of the sciences on which the arts are respectively based will, in combination with future training, render him in the highest degree competent, not only to engage in any special branch of industry, but to promote its further development. The mode of instruction is by lectures, by written and oral examinations, by practical teaching in the laboratories and drawing-office, and also by field excursions, under certain conditions. Registr., Mr. T. Reeks.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF CHEMISTRY.

315, Oxford Street, W.

The Royal College of Chemistry is the property of the Government, and its spacious and well-furnished Laboratories are used for the instruction of the pupils of the Government School of Mines. The instruction in this Institution is under the superintendence of Professor E. Frankland, and consists of—

I. A course of Practical Analysis in the Laboratory.

II. A series of Lectures on General Chemistry.

The Laboratory Instruction, which is divided into a qualitative and quantitative course, commences with experimental exercises, calculated to make the pupil practically acquainted with the general properties of the simple substances. The next subjects of his study are the analytical properties of the elements, and of their most important compounds. The knowledge thus acquired is subsequently put into practice in the performance of a series of analyses, so arranged as to lead the student, step by step, from the simplest to the most complicated cases, both of qualitative and quantitative analysis. Particular attention is paid to the use of the blowpipe, and the various methods of commercial testing, alkalimetry, chlorimetry, &c.

Each laboratory student works independently; there are no classes. All operations are superintended by the Professor and his assistants. A table, with drawers, cupboard, and shelves, is appropriated to every pupil. The Institution supplies gas, fuel, and re-agents. Larger and more expensive instruments, such as air-pumps, thermometers, barometers, condensers, large evaporating dishes, &c., may be had on loan from the Laboratory. The student has to provide himself only with the apparatus specified in the Laboratory Regulations.

The courses of Lectures are delivered in the Theatre at the College in Oxford-street. They consist of 70 Lectures, and treat of General Chemistry, with especial reference to its application in the arts and manufactures.

The Association was founded in 1857 to aid the development of Social Science, to ascertain the true principles of Jurisprudence, to promote the advancement of Education, the prevention and repression of Crime, the reformation of Criminals, the adoption of Sanitary Regulations, and the diffusion of just views on all questions of Political and Social Economy. The Association is divided into four departments—1. Jurisprudence and the Amendment of the Law; 2. Education; 3. Public Health; 4. Economy and Trade—which meet for reading and discussion at an Annual Congress and at their rooms.

The Third Department considers the various questions relating to the Public Health; it collects statistical evidence of the relative healthiness of different localities, of different industrial occupations, and generally of the influence of external circumstances in the production of health or disease; it discusses improvements in house-construction (more especially as to the dwellings of the labouring classes), in drainage, warming, ventilation; public baths and wash-houses; adulteration of food and its effects; the functions of Government in relation to public health; the legislative and administrative machinery expedient for its preservation; sanitary police, quarantine, &c.; poverty in relation to disease; and the effect of unhealthiness on the prosperity of places and nations.

POOR LAW MEDICAL OFFICERS' ASSOCIATION.—Pres., Dr. J. Rogers (33, Dean-st. W.); Vice-Pres. (Metrop.), Drs. Dudfield, E. Jones, J. Dixon, and E. Welch; (Provincial), Drs. Brett, Clarke, Sheen, and Mr. Matthews; Hon. Treas., Mr. C. M. Frost (47, Ladbroke-sq. W.); Hon. Secs., Mr. J. W. Barnes (126, Gower-st. W.C.) and Dr. Thomas (69, High-st. Marylebone, W.).

The Association was formed in 1868 by the union of the Poor Law Medical Reform Society (Chairman, Richard Griffin, Esq.) and the Metropolitan Poor Law Medical Officers' Association, for the purpose (inter alia) of obtaining life appointment and adequate remuneration for all Poor Law Medical Officers in England and Wales; also for mutual assistance, and "to provide a channel through which all defects in the Poor Law Medical service may be brought to light and discussed, with a view to their removal or amelioration." The Association consists of members and honorary members. All present or past Poor Law Medical Officers in England and Wales are eligible as members. All persons who are interested in the cause of Poor Law Medical Reform are eligible for election as honorary members. The subscription for members is five shillings per annum, the number of members (Oct. 1870) was between 800 and 900. The Council meet ordinarily at 24, Dean-st., London. W., on the second Tuesday in February, April, June, August, October, and December, at 8 p.m., and specially when necessary. There are three ordinary general meetings of the Association in the course of the year, viz., in March, July (Annual Meeting for election of officers and annual dinner), and November. The Meetings are held at the Freemasons' Tavern, and are announced in the Medical papers and by circular to the members. Communications to be addressed to the President or to one of the Secretaries.

ROYAL INSTITUTION OF GREAT BRITAIN, ALBEMARLE-STREET, PICCADILLY. W.—Established under a Charter granted by his Majesty King George the Third, in the year 1800. Enlarged and confirmed by an Act of Parliament in the year 1810. Pres., Sir Henry Holland, Bart.; Treas., Mr. W. Spottiswoode; Sec., Dr. H. Bence Jones; Fuller. Prof. of Chem., Dr. W. Odling; Fuller. Prof. of Physiol., Dr. Michael Foster; Prof. of Nat. Philos. Dr. J. Tyndall; Asst.-Sec. and Keeper of Libr., Mr. B. Vincent; Clerk of Accounts and Coll., Mr. H. C. Hughes.

The Royal Institution is an association of individuals who are attached to Science, and desirous to promote its advancement.

Its chief objects are—

1. To promote scientific and literary research.
2. To teach the principles of inductive and experimental science.
3. To exhibit the application of these principles to the various arts of life; and
4. To afford opportunities for study.

The Royal Institution comprises—

I. Two Laboratories for the promotion and advancement of chemical and physical science, by experiments and original investigations. In these the researches of Professor Davy, of Professor Faraday, and of Professor Tyndall, extending over a period of above half a century, have been conducted. The laws of Electro-chemical Decomposition,—the Decomposition of the fixed Alkalies,—the establishment of the nature of Chlorine,—the philosophy of Flame,—the Condensibility of many Gases,—the science of Magneto-Electricity,—the twofold Magnetism of Matter, comprehending all known substances,—the Magnetism of Gases,—the relation of Magnetism and light,—the physical effects of pressure,—the absorption and radiation of heat by gases and vapours,—the transparency of our atmosphere, and the opacity of its aqueous vapour to radiant heat,—are the results of investigations carried on in the Laboratory of the Royal Institution during the last sixty years. In the Chemical Laboratory, formed out of the lower lecture room, Professor Frankland carried on his researches in organic chemistry. The cost of these investigations has been partly defrayed by the voluntary contributions of many of the members, who, in addition to their ordinary subscriptions, have formed a donation fund, to be expended by the managers in any way that they may consider most desirable for the promotion of experimental research. One member has already given twelve annual donations of forty pounds each; in 1863 the sum subscribed was £455 10s.; in 1864, £295 5s.; in 1865, £191 10s.; in 1866, £248 5s.; in 1867, £136 10s.; in 1868, £127 5s.; in 1869, £111 15s.; and a legacy of £2,000.

II. Public Lectures intended to supply that which books or private instruction can rarely afford:—Experimental exhibition, highly illustrated delineation, or detailed descriptions of matters connected with science or art. They usually comprehend a short course at Christmas, and six or more courses, before and after Easter; the Season lasting from the middle of January to the middle of June. The subjects of these lectures are generally some of the different branches of inductive science—as mechanics, chemistry, heat, light, electricity, astronomy, geology, botany, and physiology. Courses are also occasionally given on subjects of general interest, as on literature, the fine arts, and music.

III. Weekly Meetings of the members of the Institution.—These are held on every Friday evening during the Session, and the members have the privilege of introducing two friends to them by tickets. The object of these meetings is to bring together men of science and literature, and to afford opportunities of communicating, by discourses in the theatre, either new views or new applications of known truths, and of demonstrating by experiment, and familiarizing by description new results which have been recently recorded in the scientific memoirs of philosophical societies. Abstracts of these Discourses, prepared by the speakers, are printed in the "Proceedings of the Royal Institution," a copy of which is sent to the members. Volumes I., II., III., IV., and V. (1851 to 1866) are ready, price, to members, 7s. 6d., to non-members, 10s. 6d. each volume, boards. The numbers for 1863 to 1870 (two each year) are sold for 1s. 6d. or 3s. each.

IV. A Museum, containing scientific apparatus of historical interest, mineral specimens, and other collections.—The chief object of this museum is to furnish apparatus for research and illustrations for the lectures and the Friday evening discourses.

V. A Library of about 36,000 volumes, including works of science,—the transactions of the principal British and Foreign academies and scientific institutions,—British history and topography, including the ancient chronicles, eminent modern historians, county histories, and many rare publications relating to these subjects,—works on literature, art, and antiquarian research,—the best editions of the Greek and Latin Classics and the Fathers of the Church,—British and Foreign literature,—and an extensive collection of historical and miscellaneous tracts, commencing with the sixteenth century.

The New Classified Catalogue of the Library (with a synopsis of contents and indexes of authors and subjects) by Mr. Vincent, the keeper of the library, is sold (bound) to the members of the Royal Institution for 10s., to the public for 15s. A list of the additions is printed annually and sent to the members.

In the Upper Library will be found a collection of Encyclopædias, Dictionaries, and Scientific Textbooks, arranged for immediate reference.

VI. A Reading-room for Study.—In this apartment will be found many series of English, French, German, and Italian scientific Memoirs and Journals, and a great number of works on the natural, medical, and mathematical sciences.

VII. A Newspaper Room, in which the principal Journals, Magazines, and Reviews, English and Foreign, are regularly provided.

A Circulating Library is subscribed to, in order to afford the members an opportunity of seeing the newest books as soon as published.

 The Reading and Newspaper Rooms are open every day from Nine in the morning till Eleven in the evening. The Upper Library is open every day from Ten in the morning till Ten in the evening, except on the Fridays during the season, when it is closed at Four in the afternoon.

Terms of Admission: Gentlemen desirous of becoming members are requested to apply to the Secretary. Candidates, when proposed by four Members, are immediately admitted to the privileges of the Institution. They are balloted for at the next General Monthly Meeting, and pay on Election Ten Guineas (Five Guineas as an Admission Fee, and Five Guineas as the first Annual Payment), or Sixty Guineas in lieu of all payments. Members are admitted to ALL Lectures delivered in the Institution, to the Libraries, to the Museum, and to the weekly evening meetings. They have the right of voting at the monthly meetings; they may also introduce by tickets two friends to each of the weekly evening Meetings, and their families have the privilege of attending the Lectures at a reduced charge. And for every additional subscription of Twenty Guineas at one time, or Three Guineas per annum, each Member is entitled to introduce personally, or by a written order, one visitor to each of the public lectures.

Annual Subscribers to the Institution pay Five Guineas, and One Guinea as an admission fee. They are admitted to all the courses of lectures delivered in the theatre of the Institution, to the libraries, and to the newspaper rooms, but have not the privilege of attending the evening meetings.

 Admission to Lectures.—The Wives of Members, and Sons and Daughters (under the age of twenty-one) of Members, are admitted for the season to all Courses of Lectures, and to the Museum, on the payment each of One Guinea, and to any separate Course on the payment each of Half-a-Guinea.

Subscribers to Lectures — For all the courses of lectures (extending from Christmas to Midsummer) pay Two Guineas; for a single course, pay One Guinea, or Half-a-Guinea, according to the length of the course. For the Christmas course, children under sixteen years of age pay Half-a-Guinea.

BENEVOLENT SOCIETIES.

THE MEDICAL BENEVOLENT FUND, 11, NEW BURLINGTON-STREET, W.—Established 1836.—Pres., G. Burrows, M.D.; Vice-Pres., Mr. E. Barker, Sir H. Holland, Bart., M.D., H. Bence Jones, M.D., and Mr. H. Sterry; Trust., H. W. Acland, M.D., G. Burrows, M.D., Dr. G. C. Lawson, Sir J. Paget, Bart., and E. H. Sieveking, M.D.; Committee, Messrs. E. H. Ambler, F. L. Birkett, M.D., W. H. Broadbent, M.D., H. Bullock, J. Churchill, N. H. Clifton, W. T. Dalby, M.D., G. T. Dale, C. De Morgan, J. F. France, T. Jervis, M.D., J. Liddle, W. Martin, J. Morgan, J. T. Mould, H. K. Owen, M.D., J. C. Steele, M.D., R. Stocker, and E. P. Young; Treas., C. J. Hare, M.D., 57, Brook-st. Grosvenor-sq. W.; Hon. Secs., Dr. Stamford Baker, 12, Chippenham-rd. St. Peter's-pk. Paddington, W. (Cases), and C. S. Webber, 1, Upper Berkeley-st. West, W. (Finances); Coll., Mr. W. E. Poole, 32A, George-st. Hanover-sq. W.

The Fund was instituted in the year 1836 to afford immediate pecuniary relief to distressed qualified members of the profession, their widows or orphans; and to grant annuities to the aged distributed among them. The extent to which these objects have been attained may be estimated from the fact that the Fund has now 33 annuitants; and that during the past year £1061 was expended in grants to 120 cases of urgent distress, in the majority of which no other resource was open. In addition to the relief afforded to the aged, blind, sick, and helpless, this Fund has aided in the bringing up and placing in situations of orphans, has given timely help to struggling widows and orphans, by which they have tided over temporary difficulties which would otherwise have overwhelmed them; and has, in many instances, enabled medical men, reduced to poverty by misfortune or illness, to resume practice and support their families.

There are also in connection with the Fund Six Cottages at Providence Place, Chippenham (a gift of Mr. Bailey); these are available for aged or disabled members of the Royal College of Surgeons of England, or their widows, having an annuity from the Fund, of at least 10*l.* per annum.

The Committee earnestly appeal to the Profession at large for renewed aid, by which the benefits of the Fund may be extended, and direct attention to the principles on which the Fund is managed. The applicants for relief or annuities have not the trouble and expense of a canvass, or the pain of undue publicity. Relief is given as promptly as possible. The only expenses are for printing, postage, and stationery, and the Collector's percentage. The Committee meet at four p.m. on the first Tuesday of every month, except October, to receive applications; and when the evidence as to character and the reality of the distress is satisfactory, a sum proportionate to the urgency of the case and the means at the disposal of the Committee, is voted, and at once sent by the Treasurer.

Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer, Hon. Secretaries, or Collector, or by any of the Members of Committee or Honorary Local Secretaries.

The College was established in 1855, in order to provide an Asylum and Pensions for duly qualified Medical Men, and the Widows of such, in reduced circumstances; and a School for the Sons of duly qualified Medical Men.

The Asylum contains twenty-four residents, who are called Pensioners, each of whom is provided with three furnished rooms, and receives a pension of £21 a year, with an allowance of coals. In addition to the resident Pensioners, there are Pensioners who have Annuities of £21, without residences. Pensioners must be legally qualified Medical Men, who have been in independent practice in England or Wales for five years from the date of their diploma, licence, or degree; the Widows of such. They must not be less than sixty years of age, at the time of their application for admission as Candidates, and their yearly incomes must not exceed £60. They will be elected in the first instance to Annuities only, and will succeed to residences in turn, as vacancies arise among the residents, providing that their circumstances are such as to render them strong inmates of the Asylum.

The School contains two hundred resident pupils, the sons of Medical Men, fifty of whom, being the Foundation Scholars, are educated, boarded, clothed, and maintained, at the expense of the Institution; while the remainder (with the exception of a few Exhibitioners, who pay lower rates,) are charged £45 a year each for an education of the highest class, board, washing, books, &c.

There is a Chapel for Divine Service according to the ritual of the Church of England.

The Pensioners and Foundation Scholars are elected by the Governors, voting by ballot.

Donors of ten guineas are life-governors of the College; subscribers of one guinea annu governors during the continuance of their subscription. Subscriptions are due in advance 1st of January in each year.

Any member of the Profession desirous of accepting the office of Honorary Local Secret Treasurer for his neighbourhood, in which one has not been appointed, would oblige by co cating with the Secretary on the subject.

Subscriptions received by the Bankers, Goslings and Sharpe, 19, Fleet-street; the Mes Council; the Hon. Local Secs.; and by the Secretary, at the Office, 37, Soho-square.

This Society was formed in the year 1788, by Drs. T. Denman, R. Denison, A. Douglas and J. Squire, and Messrs. W. Chamberlaine and T. Rendall, with the object of estab brotherhood for relieving, half yearly, those Widows and Orphans of its deceased Mem might need assistance.

It unites the advantages of a Provident with those of a Benevolent Society. It is Prov by the small yearly subscription of Two Guineas the Members do, through it, protect families from destitution, should they unexpectedly need it; and it is Benevolent, as its be conferred only on those who are left in indigent circumstances.

The Society has been greatly assisted by legacies and contributions from Members and and has especially to acknowledge the gracious patronage of various members of the Roy

The permanent efficiency of the Society depends on the maintenance of a due proportion the available income and the claims made on the funds. Computations have been made rienced actuaries on all the points susceptible of calculation by way of average.

The experience of eighty-three years has fully proved the need that existed for this So the last Report shows that 161 widows, and 263 children of Members of the Society, (com 170 families relieved,) have been placed in comfort by an aggregate sum of above 79,0 in half-yearly sums. Many of these recipients were in a state of absolute poverty, when the stepped in to succour them.

In the year 1870, 2811*l.* 10*s.* was distributed among fifty-seven widows and forty-three c

Great care has been taken, in the management of its resources, to secure the means of permanently such relief as the Society provides for those whose unfortunate condition assistance needful; and the good which it has accomplished has proved the wisdom and be of those who originally planned the Society, and the prudence and efficiency with which have since been conducted.
